Rabbits and Al Dabaran
Cash Irrigation
We Lose a Customer

—By Arthur Brisbane—

HODGE, CAL., Aug. 22—Pleasant day here, on the Mohave desert, temperature 104 in the shade, but not disagreeable, thanks to a breeze blowing steadily from the Pacific, 60 miles to the west.

Quite cold in the night, one thin blanket not enough. Cold nights, and in the day time men sunburned as dark as Indians, working with no clothing above the waists, with heat from 102 to 112—an interesting contrast.

Last night, youth, led by Howard Hill, the champion young archer from Opalocka, Florida, went out to hunt jack rabbits with spotlights and bows and arrows.

The rabbits stop for a second, huge ears erect, when the light falls upon them, and the rabbit mortality is not high.

The young men take turns, one runs the car, another, sitting on the far end of the mudguard, does the shooting, holding his balance with one leg curled around a lamp.

Criminal rabbits that have burrowed under the fence into the alfalfa lands, their idea of heaven, come down to the fence, but its close weaving makes the arrow useless.

You might send dogs after them, but dogs and rabbits would make paths in the green velvet of the alfalfa, more harmful than the rabbit's moderate eating.

If jack rabbits dodging spot light and arrows do not interest you, you may look off to a great three-cornered, red moon, rising over the mountain, or up where the milky way makes a path of brilliant white, and the bigger stars and planets stand out on a blue black sky.

Some of those suns are one million times as big as our own and our sun is a million times as big as this earth. So nothing is big, nothing is little, and perhaps a dodging jack rabbit is as important as Aldabaran, or even Orion's giant Nebula.

At four o'clock in the morning, the alfalfa baling machine is at work, outside your window, men with pitchforks feeding it, while the gas engine chugs.

Big horses, at the word of command, move the baler just the right distance to the next pile of hay with the night dew still on it, which makes the perfect hay. One set of nimble fingers attend to the wires that hold the bales together. Women can do that.

It is Sunday, but hay must be baled when it is ready. Would you enjoy working at four in the morning and later, in the day's full heat, raising alfalfa to sell at eight or nine dollars a ton for the highest grade?

There is other news, although it seems distant here.

Governor Roosevelt discovers that our troubles are due to President Hoover.

He, the President, encouraged stock gambling, then kept the facts to himself when the depression came. Governor Roosevelt has seven remedies, read them.

Governor Roosevelt proposes, if elected, to have government regulation of Wall Street. This will make Wall Street more than ever anxious to put up prices nad persuade the voters that bad times are over since stocks are going up.

Unfortunately for these election plans, about ten million Americans will not believe that bad times are over until they get jobs. As long as you can hire all the men you want for 15 cents an hour, some will believe that bad times are not ended.

Governor Rolph, of California, will not abandon his soldier bonus suggestion, although high finance tells him he is wrong. He would give soldiers of California bonds of this state guaranteed by California, in exchange for their bonus certificates.

When the certificates come due California would collect from Uncle Sam. The soldiers, easily selling their tax exempt California bonds, would have the money to spend now, when they need it.

Bonus certificates are not negotiable and that might interfere. But there is no doubt that payment of the bonus NOW would do more to end this depression than anything else could do. Distribution of two and a quarter billion dollars in every corner of the United States would REVIVE BUSINESS, put men to work, start factories going.

And the government need not beg or borrow the money, or fear inflation. It could print the money and issue it, no interest to pay. Its gold supply is ample, its credit is good. As well talk of a flood, when you irrigate these alfalfa fields, as talk about inflation, if money were distributed evenly in every corner, every store, theater, factory in the country.

However, our high finance geniuses, that have just proved their intelligence by throwing away billions of private dol-

Here Is Bell That Rang Out Death Knell of Church

Falling Spire Injures 4 in Waltham

MARTHA BRYDEN BETTY BRYDEN

Like a death knell for the old building, this bell, it was noted, yesterday struck only once each hour instead of striking the time for the clock in the steeple of the First Parish Unitarian Church in Waltham. Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin destroyed the edifice early today. Martha and Betty Bryden of Church st. are looking over the old bell, which fell with the 90-foot steeple in which the clock was located. Four firemen were injured, one perhaps fatally, as the spire collapsed. (Staff photo.) Other Picture Page 3

IRISH LOTTERY TICKETS SEIZED

Filing of a complaint by U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr in Federal court today seeking forfeiture to the government as printed matter that may be used as lottery tickets revealed that thousands of them have been sent here by agents of the Irish Free State sweepstakes.

Prosecutor Tarr asked the court to issue due process to enforce forfeiture of the tickets along with advertisements, circulars, prints and pictures, and other articles prohibited to enter here, all of which are in the possession of Wilfred W. Lufkin, collector of customs.

The Irish sweepstake lottery tickets are numbered as high as 43,331.

"We took possession of these lottery tickets when they arrived here and no one came forward to claim them," said Lufkin. "The filing of the information complaint is a formality in order that we may get legal permission to destrow them.

"People who may have a claim on them are invited to appear in court when the forfeiture complaint is up for consideration before the court."

Steeple Crashes on Four at Fire in Waltham

Four firmen were injured early today in the spectacular collapse of the 90-foot steeple of the First Unitarian Church of Waltham at the height of a suspected incendiary fire.

The century-old structure, at Church and School sts., was destroyed with a loss of $75,000.

Firemen from four surrounding communities joined Waltham department in a three-hour battle. Flying embers ignited the roofs of the nearby houses and were a constant source of danger.

ONE NEAR DEATH.

The topling steeple partially buried four firemen. Capt. Ernest W. Balcom, of Waltham, was the most seriously injured. He suffered a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries and is in a critical condition at the Waltham Hospital.

Engineman Edward Rollins and Driver Michael Nardiman, both of Waltham, and Engineman John Kennedy, of Belmont, were struck by falling timbers and slate and also taken to the hospital.

Slight damage was caused by roof fires at the homes of John J. Shaughnessy, 59 Church street, and Mrs. James Cavin, 17 School street.

Fire Chief George L. Johnson of Waltham reported the blaze as of suspicious origin and notified the office of the state fire marshal.

Before fire apparatus arrived the flames had spread throughout the entire church and up to the clock tower. Curiously enough, the clock for the 24 hours preceding the fire had struck only once for every hour, through some mechanical defect.

GENERAL ALARM SOUNDED

A general alarm was turned in and apparatus from Waltham,

SHARP FIGHT OPENS FOR WALKER

Roosevelt's Power to Remove N. Y. Mayor Contested in Albany Session

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Contesting the executive hearing of ouster charges against Mayor James J. Walker of New York city, John J. Curtin, the mayor's counsel, today argued before Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley that there was no law providing for the removal of a Manhattan mayor.

Mayor Walker has asked the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition to restrain Gov. Roosevelt from either hearing charges against the mayor or removing him.

Last Friday Justice Staley heard arguments on a similar petition, filed by George Donnelly, a Bronx resident who championed "home rule" for cities. The justice took up the Walker motion before passing upon Donnelly's petition.

"NO GENERAL LAW"

"I think it ought to be said at the outset," Curtin said, "that this application is not based on the theory that the court has jurisdiction. No jurisdiction is given the governor in the constitution, so we are not dealing with the constitutional question, nor are we dealing with a general law—strange as it may seem—for removal of the mayor of New York City."

Curtin, as he argued, stood at the counsel table, toying with his eyeglasses. He spoke slowly and often paused as if marshaling his thoughts.

Justice Staley leaned forward, arms akimbo on the bench, listening. He interrupted from time to time to rephrase Curtin's statements and say:

"Is that what you mean?"

HOME RULE CONTENTION

Curtain discussed section 122 of the New York city charter, which provides for the removal of the mayor by the Governor.

"Now that act," Curtin said, "if it is any good at all, will have to be good under Section 7, Article 10 of the Constitution." (The home rule provisision).

The section referred to says the Legislature shall provide by law for the removall for misconduct of officers whose duties are not local or legislative and who are not elected at a general election. The attorney added that Walker's duties the local.

"What is removal," Curtin asked. "What kind of jurisdiction is required? I don't think anybody will question a statement that it is either a judicial or an executive act.

"An executive couldn't remove without some kind of a hearing, and, of course, the proceedings are judicial. When a judicial hearing is over the executive issues an order and that's where the executive angle comes in."

Fair Weather to Remain Few Days

Fair weather is on tap as far as the local weatherman's horizon reaches—at least for the first part of this week—and if you feel the heat, the temperature gives no threat of soaring to unreasonable heights.

It was 71 degrees at 9 a. m., or seven degrees warmer than yesterday at the same hour and 20 degrees lower than the record of 91 established for the date in 1880.

Speaking Mischievously Without Carrying a Stick

PRESIDENT HOOVER is not disposed to let his Secretary of State enjoy the credit—the very dubious credit—of being the originator of the so-called "Stimson doctrine."

The law of the Kellogg Pact—the meddler's law—which, according to Secretary Stimson, imposes an affirmative duty upon us to interfere in every controversy between nations anywhere in the world, is not the Stimson doctrine after all. IT IS THE HOOVER DOCTRINE.

"I have projected," said President Hoover in his acceptance speech, "a new doctrine into international affairs, the doctrine that we do not and never will recognize title to or possession of territory gained in violation of the peace pacts which were signed with us."

The President claims to have gone beyond the Kellogg Pact and to have "transformed it from an inspiring outlawry of war to an organized instrument . . . against aggression."

MAKING sure that no imbroglio in the world can escape our intervention, President Hoover says: "We shall under the spirit of that pact consult with other nations in times of emergency to promote world peace."

Thus does the President not only affirm his leaning to the poisonous creed of internationalism, but he carries internationalism itself to an extreme which it has never before reached.

Alarming as this is, it becomes more so as one notes the further trend of Mr. Hoover's thought.

He links the new policy of universal meddling with an exposition of what he is doing for disarmament.

"We inaugurated the London Naval Treaty which reduced armaments and limited the ratios between the fleets of the three powers," says the President.

He does not, however, add that the London Naval Treaty did not satisfy his passion for disarmament. He does not say that we alone, unaccompanied by similar action on the part of rival

MOB IN DUBLIN SEIZES CASTLE

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 22 (AP)—Two hundred men provided with arms and ammuntion seized Donaman Castle, five miles from Roscommon, during the night. It is an unoccupied building owned by Algernon Caulfield.

It was believed the force was affiliated with the Irish Republican army, but the purpose of their seizure of the castle was not known.

Residents of the district were apprehensive because the castle was occupied by Free State forces some years ago when the Free Staters and the Ulstermen were embattled, and much fighting occurred.

COURT ISSUES DOLE FRAUD WARRANTS

Fireman Pleads in Vain to Free Mother; Man Admits $5 City Aid Buys His Rum

Warrants charging three persons, one the mother of a Boston fireman, with larceny from the welfare department were issued by Judge Elijah Adlow in municipal court today as the city launched its big drive to punish dole "fakers," first exposed by the Boston Evening American.

A fourth warrant was refused because the man involved is 76 years old, claimed he had no knowledge of his wife's bank account and promised restitution.

HAD $1376 IN BANK

Those against whom warrants were issued are:

Mario Mazzota, Hull st., North End, charged with 27 counts of larceny in collecting $236 from the city in weekly installments, while having $1376 in the Suffolk Savings Bank. The city aid was paid to him this year, starting in February.

Mrs. Catherine Glynn, Leonard st., Dorchester, charged with 26 counts of larceny in receiving $285 from the city while having $1156 in the Five Cents Savings Bank. Her aid started n October and was $8 a week, later cut to $7.

Albert Mizhere, Harrison ave., South End, 43 counts of larceny, received $316 in relief payments beginning last October, and allegedly had an account in the Worcester County Savings Bank under the name of Abdella Mizheere.

The two men were in court with counsel at the warrant nearing, bur Mrs. Glynn was not represented.

SON OFFERS CASH

After Asst. Corp. Counsel Hale Power, who applied for and obtained the warrants, returned to the city law department in Beacon st., he received a visit from the woman's fireman son, who excitedly tried to explain the circumstances and offered restitution, Power said.

"It's too late, the warrant is issued," said Power. "Mrs. Glynn received due notice of what we were going to do."

Two men charged with various offenses in East Boston court today admitted receiving welfare aid and three more, in Dorchester district court for drunkenness, were found to have welfare cards.

A crowd filled the courtroom in municipal court as Power asked for the warrants, with counsel for the defendants battling to prevent it.

Power made it plain he acted for the city law department, taking

EXCLUSIVE!

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Aug. 22 (US)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, is making tremendous inroads into the ranks of those who four years ago supported the Republican presidential ticket. President Hoover, on the other hand is cutting only slightly into the 1928 Democratic ranks.

This is disclosed in the first analysis of the party vote from returns in the nationwide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Of the 64,850 ballots thus far tabulated, Gov. Roosevelt has received 41,640 and President Hoover 23,210, a 64-36 per cent advantage for the Democratic candidate.

Ninety-two per cent of those sending in Roosevelt ballots indicated thereon the party they supported in 1928, while 95 per cent of the Hoover backers set forth their stand four years ago.

MANY G. O. P. VOTES

The Roosevelt supporters divided 22,710 or 55 per cent, voting Democratic in 1928 and 15,417 or 37 per cent who went Republican in the last election. The other 3,513 now favoring Roosevelt were non-committal on their past stand.

The Hoover supporters divided 21,059 or 91 per cent as having voted for him in 1928 while only 928 set themselves down as voting Democratic four years ago. The remaining 1213 were non-committal.

Hoover backers of 1928 predominate in those who have sent in poll ballots, 36,476 or 56 per cent. of the 64,850 tabulated being recorded as voting Republican in the last election. Supporters of the Democratic ticket four years ago numbered 23,648 or 36 per cent of the poll balloters. The remaining 4,726 or eight per cent., were in the non-committal group.

SUPPORT OF OWN PARTY

The 36,476 Republicans of four years ago are now divided, 58 per cent, for Hoover, and 42 per cent, for Roosevelt. On the other hand the solid support Roosevelt is getting within his own party is revealed in the 97 per cent of the 1928 Democratic vote he is holding, giving only three per cent, to his opponent.

Outstanding among the states where Roosevelt has cut into the Republican fold is California where he has drawn almost double the number of Republican votes that have gone to Hoover.

New York Pennsylvania and Illinois are three others among the larger states where Roosevelt is showing an extraordinary pull of former Hoover supporters to his standard this year.

TRAINS HALTED IN FARM WAR

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 22 (AP)—Striking farmers in their "war" for higher agricultural prices have begun to detain railway traffic to keep farm produce out of Sioux City, meanwhile seeking an extension of their battle lines to Omaha and Council Bluffs.

Two freight trains bound for Sioux City were stopped last night. It was the first attempt of the strikers to prevent rail shipments of farm commodities, all of their previous picketing having been concentrated on motor trucks.

One of the trains, detained at Moville, Ia., by a group of approximately 200 farmers, was permitted to proceed after a short delay.

The other train was stopped at Jefferson, S. D., by 50 farmers for only five minutes.

The strikers claimed new impetus for their movement was gained yesterday when about 1000 farmers and their families, assembled at Dunlap, Ia., agreed to broaden their activities to take in both Omaha and Council Bluffs.

It was considered possible that the farmers might extend their lines to include Des Moines in central Iowa.

VOTE FOR SMITH MOVE IS BARED

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Times said today that cards urging voter to write in the name of Alfred E. Smith on the presidential ballot in November have been circulated in three or four middle western states.

Cards received here, the paper said, were traced to the Smith Club of Nebraska, an organization formed before the Democratic national convention.

It was pointed out here by Democratic leaders that the writing in of Smith's name on the ballot would merely render the vote ineffective since the vote is not directly for the President, but for an electoral college.

G. O. P. and Socialists Join in War on Roosevelt

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP)—Criticism from political foes descended upon Franklin D. Roosevelt today for utterances in his campaign address at Columbus.

Prominent Republican spokesmen were joined by Norman Thomas, the Socialist presidential candidate, in pressing on Roosevelt inquiries as to why, as Governor of New York, he had not instituted reforms in stock exchange and bank regulation which he espoused at Columbus.

In addition, the State Department accused him of insinuating the department had "assisted the bankers in the past" by passing on or approving foreign loans. It again denied this activity and said "it would be interesting to know whether Mr. Roosevelt intends to revive this long since discredited story."

Roosevelt promised that if he were elected it would no longer be possible for international bankers to sell foreign securities in this country "on the implied understanding" that they had passed upon at Washington.

G. O. P. WILL USE TEDDY, JR., FOR HIS NAME

Manila, Aug. 22 (AP)—The name of Roosevelt is to be brought into the Republican campaign in behalf of President Hoover.

Theodore Roosevelt, governor general of the Philippines, said today he would sail for the United States Sept. 14 to take part in the effort to re-elect Mr. Hoover.

Roosevelt's participation in the Republican campaign was understood to be desired by party leaders because of the value of the name. He also has had experience in politics.

ROOSEVELT TO ATTACK HOOVER DRY STAND

By EDWARD L. RODDAN

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 22 (US)—Well satisfied with the reaction to his Columbus speech, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was planning today to unlimber his guns upon President Hoover's alleged about-face on prohibition.

In all likelihood, the nominee will discuss the dry law and its failures in his talk Saturday at Sea Girt, New Jersey, where Frank Hague has promised him an audience mounting close to 100,000 people.

MESSAGES LAUD HIM

Messages from all parts of the nation congratulating Gov. Roosevelt on his demand for federal regulation of Wall St. are pouring into the executive mansion, it was revealed today.

While the Governor has not made public any of the messages it was learned many of them praise his "courage" for taking such a stand, particularly at a time when an effort is being made to raise $1,500,000 to finance the Democratic presidential campaign.

A few of the messages, however, were not of a flattering nature Mr. Roosevelt said.

Both the governor and his political advisers were pleased, not only by the flood of telegrams but also by the receptions accorded the Democratic presidential nominee at many points in Ohio, regarded for years as a Republican stronghold in presidential elections.

Aides of the governor believe he coined a new phrase comparable with "the forgotten man" when, in his Columbus address, he assailed the right of powerful interests to make "industrial cannon fodder" of the lives of half this nation's population.

Wall St. Almost Solidly for Hoover, Boost Stocks to Get War Chest

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, Aug. 21 (US)—Wall St. is for Hoover. There is no doubt of it. Men who control the powerful financial, corporation and power enterprises—and the stock ticker—are for Hoover and against Roosevelt almost to a man.

Wall Street always takes a practical view of politics. Its methods in supporting this view are always backed with the most practical of support—money.

TWO REASONS FOR DRIVE

The sudden "discovery" by Wall Street that prosperity has "actually come around the corner" was prompted by two considerations. The first was in the nature of an object lesson designed to prove that the election of Hoover is essential to the welfare of the country.

LOUIS SEIBOLD

The second object of this friendly gesture was to permit the speculative public to provide a campaign fund to be used in insuring the defeat of Roosevelt and Garner, the Democratic candidates.

The first purpose may sink to an all-time low. Hoover may be defeated. But there is no question that those who play the stock market will be permitted to pay the bill in victory or defeat.

In making this certain the men who control the speculative machinery that raises or lowers values have already succeeded in getting "the public" back into the game.

Later on, when "values" have been further increased, securities will be unloaded. The profits will be dumped into the bank accounts of the expert manipulators and divided on a reasonable basis.

The lion's share of these profits will undoubtedly boost the bank balances of the manipulators. But a goodly percentage will be turned over to the managers of the Hoover campaign to be used in helping to sell Hoover to the country a second time and staving off the "disaster" which Wall St. solemnly predicts would result from the election of Roosevelt.

The device of making the speculative public provide a substantial part of Republican campaign funds is not new. Mark Hanna successfully employed it back in the McKinley days. Harding was generously helped by Wall Street. So was Hoover.

PUBLIC WILL PAY

Hoover is to be helped again. If successful, Wall Street will not only buy the protection it has always enjoyed under Republican policies, but will save a lot of money and worry foolishly anticipated if Roosevelt should be the victor.

In permitting the public to pay the Republican campaign bill Wall Street will not only "make a little change" for itself but will claim most of the credit for having put Hoover over, if he is put over.

The roster of Hoover supporters in the financial sections of the country includes pretty nearly every international and domestic banker, director of major corporations, power and utility companies and manufacturer now protected by Republican tariff policies.

The house of Morgan, the steel corporations, the gigantic oil monopolies, the copper, coal, textile, railroad and shipping interests are generously represented in the committees appointed by Mr. Hoover to tackle economic problems and independent groups who pretend to fear consequences of Democratic success.

Roosevelt and Garner have made it unmistakably clear that banking, corporation and manufacturing interests are not warranted in any apprehension of unfavorable treatment at the hands of the Democratic candidates and the party back of them.

Wall Street does not accept these pledges at face value. It pretends to fear the worst, although most of the men who reflect apprehension on this score do not actually believe that Mr. Roosevelt could or would inflict any more damage to legitimate business interests than have resulted from the Hoover policies.

PROMOTERS FEAR HIM

Most of the opposition to Roosevelt naturally comes from promoters and financial backers of the power and utility monopolies who have earned tremendous profits by exploiting the people.

The reason is that the men who have made tremendous fortunes out of power and utility enterprises are convinced the Democratic party would move to correct the abuses against which there is now widespread protest and demand for a change.

It is significant that every promoter and backer of gigantic power corporations organized by the Morgan, Insull and Bylesby institutions and other great concerns engaged in the manufacture and sale of power is lined up solidly against the Democratic candidates.

POWER STOCKS LEAD

The speculative value of power and utility "securities" has set the pace in the recent rise on the stock and other exchanges. In some instances these "securities" of such ventures have increased as much as 60 per cent.

Some very fat profits have naturally resulted. There is little question that a substantial percentage will be devoted to making certain the success of the more "friendly" Republican candidates.

powers, ignored the treaty ratios and permitted our own naval strength to drop far beneath the permitted quotas.

"We have made concrete proposals at Geneva to reduce the armaments of the world by one-third," says the President.

But he does not tell us that these proposals received only the scantest attention, producing hardly a ripple at the Geneva conference and not halting for a moment the European race for armament.

THUS, as our defenses crumble and our strength declines, we elect to stand forth as the WORLD'S GREAT PROVOCATEUR, inviting its RESENTMENTS, taking sides in disputes that do not affect us, SCORNING THE SAFE ROLE OF NEUTRALITY in wars that do not involve our interests, and COURTING THE DANGER of being classified and TREATED AS A BELLIGERENT BY POWERS WHICH, but for our gratuitous interventions, WOULD BE FRIENDLY.

This is heady, dangerous stuff!

It behooves a nation that essays such a meddler's role to look to its strength and to its defenses, —not to neglect them.

But the President, insensible to what his course involves, proceeds with his fatuous "economy program" of skimping the army and starving the navy, when every word he utters and every step he takes in the field of foreign policy make both branches of our armed forces increasingly vital to the nation's safety.

What is this "inspiring outlawry of war" on which Mr. Hoover prates?

We had a sample of it a few months ago in the sudden onslaught by Japan, a signatory of the Kellogg Pact, upon China, another signatory of the Kellogg Pact.

WAR, instead of being outlawed, seems to have experienced a rebirth. It rent the Lilliputian bonds of the Kellogg Pact as if they were tissue paper.

And it will do so again, when and as often as the urge of interest, policy or fear shall gain ascendancy over the reason and the will of a nation.

One of the well-remembered sayings of the late President Roosevelt was, "SPEAK SOFTLY, BUT CARRY A BIG STICK."

Mr. Hoover has made a dangerous departure from both these admonitions.

HE SPEAKS MISCHIEVOUSLY AND IN A HIGH PITCH, BUT DOESN'T CARRY ANY STICK AT ALL.

lars in Europe and South America, say NO and therefore the bonus will not be paid, although its payments would benefit them more than others.

They fight that now as they once fought the Federal Reserve Bank proposition. And without that Federal Reserve, this country would recently have gone through such a black panic as the world never saw.

The government is dumping its billions into financial institutions, lending to great corporations sums up to one hundred millions, hoping that the money, in some mysterious way, will seep out and reach the peoples' pockets.

That's as foolish as though the sixty thousand gallons of water pumped from the well on this ranch every hour, should be pumped into the big concrete reservoir, and left to find its own way to the alfalfa roots, instead of pouring through pipes and ditches that distribute the water to the roots of every plant.

Japan went into Manchuria, spent money, and her finance minister confesses that she is now in a very bad financial crisis. Let US not criticise Japan. We went into Europe's war, head over heels, pocketbook and all. We spent billions and sent billions, and when it was over, like a parcel of brilliant idiots, we lent dozens of other billions. That is costing us more than Manchuria will ever cost Japan.

Britain's trade conference at Ottawa ends, and tens of millions worth of goods that Canada used to buy from us every year she will buy no more for the present. We cannot criticise the British and their dominions for endeavoring to establish free trade among themselves, as we have it among our 48 states.

On the other hand, we buy every year from Canada more than the whole British Empire buys from her. We may be able to transfer that buying to home producers. If we do, Canada will congratulate us. In any case our total exports amount to only 10 per cent of our total production, even in boom times. If all our people had all they want of everything the 10 per cent exports would soon be absorbed.

'TAX STRIKER' IS MYSTIFIED BY STREET WORK

Medford Woman Disclaims a Blow at Woman Protestant; Home Owners Meet Tonight

Mrs. Evelyn M. Bracy, leader of a group that protests a $6.40 increase, awoke to find city employes repairing the street in front of her Pilgrim rd. home.

What's more, the street is a private way and repairs do not come under jurisdiction of the city.

And more than that, a reporter traversed the street several times during the past week and observed today that many public streets are more in need of repair than Pilgrim rd.

So—the reporter hied himself to the office of Mayor John H. Burke to see what he could see.

MAYOR DENIES "REVENGE"

Mayor Burke was out but his office staff revealed that the repairs were the result of a complaint by a motorist—no relation, nor even a friend, of Mrs. Bracy.

The work was in charge of Joseph Delorey, street department foreman, who had eight men from the welfare payroll at his command.

Mayor Burke's office staff denied that the repairs had any connection with a meeting of Mrs. Bracy and other home owners in Medford High School tonight.

More than 1000 home owners are expected at the meeting, the second in protest against the tax rate.

THREATS TO SEIZE HOMES

The tax battle has brought threats of home owners to ignore their tax bills and counter threats of city authorities to seize homes for non-payment. The latter came in a decision of City Solicitor Lewis H. Peters Saturday.

Plans of the taxpayers call for open defiance of Mayor Burke, the aldermen and city solicitor. In a statement for the home owners, Mrs. Bracy declared:

"We are on strike against this $6.40 increase from $30.80 to $37.20 because we cannot afford to pay it."

$50,000 Legs Too Beautiful, Wife to Give Gillis Up

A wife bowed down in defeat today to Marjorie Whittington's $50,000 legs—and out of the ice-pick stabbing of James Gillis at a Lake Archer camp in Wrentham came the wife's forecast that her marriage was ended.

At Glen Cove, L. I., Mrs. James Gillis, mother of two children, declared Gillis has not supported his family for a year, and said:

"I can't compete with the $50,000 legs of Marjorie Whittington. I'm going to file suit for separation and support and end my hopeless marriage.

"If he can afford to go on vacation trips with other women, he should be able to support me and our two children. My father has given me an allowance for the past year. Jim hasn't contributed a cent."

Gillis was plentifully but superficially punctured with an ice pick during an affray at the lake camp which resulted in Marjorie, blonde former Follies beauty, and her brother Larry, a New York cartoonist, being fined $25 each last week in Franklin court on a charge of disturbing the peace. A drunkenness charge was filed.

Incidentally, Marjorie has declared that she will be married again, but she is coy about naming her fiance.

Newspaper accounts of the affray in Wrentham were her first intimation that her husband was interested in other women, Mrs. Gillis declared at her New York home today. She did not even know his whereabouts from August 5 until the Wrentham affair, she said.

"I still love Jim but there's nothing left for me to do but separate from him," the wife commented. "I'm not going to try to compete with actresses. We have our two daughters and our home here, and if he doesn't want these, there's nothing I can do.

"We painted the kitchen together a few days before he left. We made a lark of it and he seemed happy. When he left on the 5th he promised to be back that night. He interrupted the piano practice of our 12-year-old Naomi to kiss her good bye, and the other daughter, Gloria, walked to the station with him.

"If my husband had sent for me after the affair, it would have been another story. I'd have gone to him, ready to forgive. But his silence convinces me he no longer loves me."

The wife said she was not certain of her husband's occupation but believes him to be a bookmaker.

Former Mary McDevitt House Hunting to Be a Real Boston Matron

Last year's exoctic romance which ended in the marriage of Stephen Sohier Bigelow, wealthy clubman, and Mary Louise McDevitt, daughter of a deputy sheriff, is apparently going to have a happy ending with the bride established as a matron of Boston society.

At the Hotel Bellevue, to which they returned after eight months in the South Seas, Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow today claimed a complete reconciliation with his mother, Mrs. Joseph F. Bigelow, one of society's most prominent leaders.

Mrs. Bigelow vigorously opposed the wedding, which took place after a somewhat premature announcement by the bride-to-be, but it now appears htat all is well.

TALK OVER TELEPHONE

"We have talked with Mr. Bigelow on the telephone at Cohasset and we are completely reconciled," the bride said. "We are going to Cohasset to see her soon but I couldn't say just when.

"Our immediate concern is to find an apartment here in Boston. I want to settle down here and become a regular Boston matron.

"We have seen and talked with my father and everything is all right there."

She discussed her plans this morning while her husband, a wartime aviator, got in another hour's sleep.

Bigelow and his wife are collaborating on a play based on their experience in the South Seas, the locale of which will be laid in Papeete. Mrs. Bigelow has already completed a story in collaboration with James Norman Hall, author, who was often their host during their stay in Tahiti.

ON TAHITI BEACH

The couple, according to their description, spent days on the beach, attended native ceremonials and lived life happily romantically.

"Mary had to cook for me the first week we were there," Bigelow laughed.

"Was she a good cook?" he was asked.

"Very good," was Bigelow's answer, "but we soon got a Chinese boy to take over the job. Time was nothing. Our watches stopped and the clocks ran down and we just went on having a good time doing nothing."

"We went to see war dances and marriage dances and all sorts of ceremonials. They were thrilling," Mary explained. "We put on native costumes for picnic parties and sampled all sorts of native dishes and drinks."

Last year the then Miss McDevitt first announced they had been married at Greenwich, Ct. Then all the principals disappeared and a few days later Deputy Sheriff William A. McDevitt, Mary's father, made known the New York wedding.

CHIEF LOST TO RUM LORDS IN DARTMOUTH

By THE MASKED REPORTER

(Copyright, 1932, by Boston Evening American. All Rights Reserved.

New Bedford, Aug. 22—Just beyond the outskirts of this city, in the direction of Fall River, lies the town of Dartmouth, a peaceful-looking hamlet by day, but at night a rendezvous for rum-runners and their beaching crews.

There's many a haven there for the lads to idle away hours between working spells at the "drops," or landing places for rum smuggled ashore along Cape Cod.

Masked Reporter

Unwelcome as their presence is to the many honest and law-abiding citizens of the community the rum gangs have filtered in to the town in ever-increasing numbers so that Dartmouth today is known in the racket as the Cicero of New Bedford.

A long time back there was a police chief named Joe Christy who enforced the town ordinances of Dartmouth and the laws of the Commonwealth with a rigid hand.

With the advent of prohibition things got hot around Dartmouth. Geographically speaking it was an ideal place for big shot rum-runners to set up a base for operations.

One of the first things a rum boss does in opening a base is to consult the local police and that's just what was done in Dartmouth. A dapper young man approached Chief Christy one day and "propositioned" him.

He offered the chief, or rather the ex-chief more money than he could make in a year as police chief with constable fees thrown in.

JUST STAY AWAY

All the ex-chief had to do was to stay away from a certain pier, certain nights, and keep his men away also.

But the ex-chief came from a long line of Cape Codders who had wrested an honest living from the sea long before the day of "bottle-fish," and his refusal was, to say the least, vehement.

Thereupon the advance agent for the rum crowd remarked:

"Well, I guess we'll have to find a more agreeable chief."

For, at the very next meeting of the Board of Selectmen, a disgruntled copper stepped up and began saying things about the chief, the most serious charge being that he wasn't getting enough work. He meant legitimate work.

Because, outside his uniform hours, the copper was in the habit of tending lobster pots but his pots contained "bottle-fish" dropped in by rum-runners. In addition to that he filled in as a truck driver and beach worker for the rum gang.

BEGINNING OF END

It was the beginning of the end for Chief Christy. Another copper saw his chief was on the way out and he made a valiant bid for the job. But the selectmen had the present Chief Mosher in mind and that's the way the thing worked out.

From that time quaint old Dartmouth ceased to be a curfew town. It's the "hot-cha" burg of the Cape right now with all-night joints running full blast except when the moon is low and the rummies are making dashes from Rum Row to the Dartmouth shores.

It's a town where motorcycle cops and troopers wave friendly greetings to rum trucks rushing cityward but where speeders still pay and pay.

Tomorrow the Masked Reporter will write of the amusing "Triple-Cross" in which two different details of coppers set out to grab a rum truck, fell afoul of each other, and in the ensuing argument, so abused each other that the Customs were attracted to the scene and the loot seized according to law.

FLIERS SOS FOR MORE HAIRPINS

Valley Stream, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Having received a new supply of needed hairpins and having completed eight full days in the air at 1 p. m. today, Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louis Thaden flew on today, already far past the old endurance flight record for women.

The young matrons started their flight at 1 p. m. E. S. T., August 14. They passed the old record of 123 hours, held by Bobby Trout and Edna May Cooper, late last Friday afternoon.

There was some expectation that they would land this afternoon, based on their statement before they took off that they intended to attend the National Air Races at Cleveland.

action on request of the overseers of the public welfare, and not for the police department, which is making widespread investigation, but has taken no cases into court as yet.

DEPOSITS ATTACHED

Civil action is being taken to recover the amounts illegally received in all cases, the bank deposits having been attached. Trial of the cases in which warrants were issued today will probably take place later this week.

Counsel for Jacob Glickman, Intervale st., Roxbury, forestalled issuance of a warrant. Glickman is 76. He received $249 in public aid.

The city claimed he has joint accounts in the Grove Hall and the Eliot Savings banks, totaling $1212, with his wife. His attorney said Mrs. Jennie Glickman is his second wife and that Glickman knew nothing of the bank accounts.

Restitution beig promised, Judge Adlow declined to issue the warrat. Glickman's lawyer said the man had been seeking work steadily and felt fully deserving of aid.

STATE AND CITY AID

In East Boston district court, Frank DeLice, 43, of Percival pl., charged with a statutory offense with Helen Anderson of the same address, admitted receiving $5 a week welfare aid. He was given a year on the statutory charge and appealed.

DeLice said he is a widower with four children but admitted the children were being cared for by the state, having been placed in a home in North Easton.

The woman was sentenced to the women's reformatory at Sherborn and also appealed.

Benjamin Penta, 39, of Barton st., East Boston, sentenced to 10 days in the House of Correction for using a slug in a slot machine, admited receiving $3 a week public aid. He appealed.

Dorchester police, called to break up what was reported to be a drunken brawl, arrested a father of five children whose life accused him of striking her. Her father punched the husband in return. The husband had a welfare card, disclosing he received $13 a week. Two of his children are ill.

$5 DOLE FOR RUM

Police said their investigation showed he turned $8 over to his wife and kept $5 "for drink." He had a pint of liquor when arrested. He was drunk practically every night, investigating officers said.

Judge Walsh, in Dorchester court, placed him on probation and ordered the probation officer to write to the welfare department to acquaint officials with the circumstances.

Two other Dorchester men, arrested for drunkenness over the weekend, were found to have welfare cards, and Judge Walsh, placing them on probation, ordered letters to the welfare department in their cases also.

SCORES QUIT LIST

While police, investigating 20,000 welfare cases in Boston, have not yet taken any cases to court, they are credited with causing scores to take fright and ask to have themselves removed from the relief rolls. moved from the welfare list.

Other developments today were:

NEWTON — Mayor Weeks calls special meeting of aldermen for tonight to pjass $12,000 appropriation to develop Cold Spring Swamp playground, Newton Center, to provide employment for all able-bodied men on welfare list.

Weeks will also ask $8000 to finish the grading and re-seeding of Commonwealth ave. reservation, on which 80 needy veterans are employed.

CAMBRIDGE—Drop woman from welfare list after discovery she has two sons, one a fireman in Cambridge, the other in the fire department of a nearby city. Another Cambridge fireman's father is dropped.

Eight West End pedlars requested yesterday that their names be taken off the welfare rolls, after it was learned they were working daily, although they had declared they were jobless and had been receiving aid from the welfare department.

Police investigation also disclosed that many had given fictitious addresses to the department. Twelve of 15 fraudulent cases uncovered by the police in East Boston were classified as "persons unknown" when their addresses were looked up.

"KEEP PROBE GOING"

A joint committee on municipal finance of the Chamber of Commerce and the Boston Real Estate Exchange has suggested that the police and the welfare department maintain continuous co-operation in the stopping of fraudulent attempts on the welfare department.

"The conditions surrounding every recipient of public aid should be checked with frequent regularity in order to disclose any change in status," the statement of the committee ran.

"We suggest the development of a permanent co-operative plan between the police department and the public welfare department for continuous supervision of cases. Such supervision will discourage fraudulent efforts to obtain relief and will help to establish confidence in the public welfare work of the city government."

The State Department of Public Welfare has entered the arena with the announcement that 100 "cheaters" on the old age assistance rolls have been discovered.

These "cheaters," however, it was explained, have been forced to pay back the money.

4 INJURED IN A CHURCH FIRE

Newton, Belmont, Lexington and Watertown arrived to fight the blaze. Firemen were hampered by a throng which gathered and often broke through police lines.

Persons living in the vicinity trained garden hose on the roofs of their homes to prevent the shower of embers from the burning church from spreading the blaze.

At the start of the blaze firemen were driven back from the church by a constant falling of loosened slate from the structure's roof.

The steeple, threatening to topple every minute, was a constant source of danger to the fighting firemen. Many firemen narrowly escaped being trapped.

Capt. Balcom was rescued, unconscious, from beneath the timbers and the other injured firemen were given first aid and then rushed to the hospital.

The church is closed during July and August and the Rev. Kenneth G. Gesner, pastor of the church, is away on his vacation.

SHOT PUTS END TO ROMANCE OF COUPLE

A night school romance of last winter accounted for a shooting in Back Bay last night and the arrest of Michael Dellorfano, 54, of Cooper st., North End, it was revealed today in municipal court.

Dellorfano, charged with assault on his wife and carrying a revolver while still an alien, was held in bonds of $1500 for a hearing Aug. 30.

Thomas Grady, counsel for Dellorfano, told the court of the romance after police testified that Dellorfano fired two shots at his wife when he found her with a younger man in St. Botolph st., Back Bay.

"My client's wife is much younger than her husband," Atty. Grady told the court.

"Last winter she attended night school and met a younger man. There was a romance that ended in the trouble last night."

Grady asked for the continuance, which was granted.

The wife was uninjured, it was found, after police took her to City Hospital amid screams that she was "dying." Her escort fled police and escaped.

TWO WIVES SEE POTTER JAILED

Two of his three wives saw Arthur W. Potter, confessed bigamist, go to jail for a year today when he declined in municipal court the right of appeal.

Wife No. 3, the former Ann Geoffrion, and wife No. 2, the former Mildred Kennedy, sat together in the courtroom.

Potter, who was arrested in the Back Bay last week with wife No. 3, beckoned to her from the dock and asked her to visit him in jail. She agreed.

Wife No. 2, who instigated the police raid, was ignored by Potter.

Potter's first wife, the former Cecelia Wilkinson, has not appeared.

"I'll take what's coming to me," Potter replied to the clerk when he asked if he wished to appeal.

Before entering court he was reluctant to discuss his three-fold marital affairs but stated:

"There is an explanation but I can't talk about it. If I could, I would tell a startling story and let people know what a young fellow without the advice of friends is really up against."

INDUSTRY IN JULY SHOWS A REAL GAIN

Washington, Aug 22 (AP)—Business upturns, which it said were more than seasonal in character, were noted today by the Labor Department in its July analysis of trade.

"It was the first really noticeable expansion in industrial activity that has occurred so far this year," said the department's employment information bulletin of July gain.

Specific increases were in the boot and shoe industry, with "quite a number" of factories back to a full-time basis; the textile industry, especially manufactories of woolen, worsted, rayon and silk products; anthracite mining, showing re-employment of several thousands; highway construction, increasing not only direct employment but swelling the payrolls of stone quarries and cement mills.

LAST RITES FOR CARDINAL'S KIN

With World War veterans serving as honorary pallbearers for the veteran of the Civil War, fought before the pallbearers were born, funeral services were held today in St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton, for John O'Connell, brother of Cardinal O'Connell.

Cardinal O'Connell sat within the sanctuary during the solemn high mass of requiem at 10 a. m., with the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael J. Splaine of St. Mary's of the Assumption Church, Brookline; Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis M. Burke, chancellor of the archdiocese, and Rt. Rev. Mgr. Ambrose J. Roche of St. Thomas' Church, Jamaica Plain.

Many priests were in the church and a delegation of Lowell police in uniform was present under command of Deputy Supt. Michael H. Winn, in recognition of Mr. O'Connell's 27 years of service in the Lowell police department.

VAMPIRE GIRL IS SEIZED AS SPY

Lyons, France, Aug. 22 (INS)—"The vampire girl with the green eyes," as police know Miss Mina Kahn, pretty blonde girl of German birth, was jailed here today pending an inquiry to determine whether she is a spy.

Police say they found 46 numbered letters, with certain words underlined, in her possession. They believed the underlined words formed a code.

The young woman is widely travelled and has many admirers. Among these is an Italian also suspected of being a spy whom she was believed to have met in Geneva.

BABY BONUSES ARE URGED BY EUGENISTS

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—State-paid bonuses for having children of good heredity were advocated at the third international congress of Eugenics which opened here today.

Failure of contraceptives to limit births of inferior children was asserted. Abortions were reported beneficial to female health in some cases in Russia, but were frowned on as means of eugenic progress at present.

Protection against immigrat morons even more dangerous to a nation than disease germs was suggested through laws permitting deportation of first generation children of newcomers in any country.

DAYLIGHT TIME JAILS WOMAN CHECK PASSER

Daylight saving, it was revealed today, proved the undoing of Mrs. Mabel Tyrrell, notorious bad check passer of Boston, arrested Saturday afternoon in Manchester, N. H., for alledgedly working her old "racket" on local stores.

Arrested with her was a girl, a juvenile, whose name is being withheld because of her age.

FOOLED ON TIME

It was Mrs. Tyrrell's mistake in thinking that Manchester was on daylight saving time that caused her downfall, police said.

She went to Manchester from Portland, Me., which has daylight saving time, and sent the girl into a local bank to deposit $1, the police allege. It was deposited in a commercial account. The entry in the passbook was then raised, it is alleged, and "fake" additional entries made.

Armed with this book, the woman and girl went to a women's apparel store, after having waited, as they supposed, until after the banks were closed. As a matter of fact, the banks were open exactly one hour after they began their round of the stores.

CHECKS WITH BANK

After they left the store, the owner called up the bank on which the check was drawn, and explained he had accepted the check on the strength of the passbook, which had been shown him, but had grown suspicious afterwards. The bank told him the check was worthless.

Patrolman Edward Barry began a search and after tracing the pair to various stores, and finding that in the last one they bought and put on a complete new outfit of clothing, of which he was given a description, he found them on Elm st.

Mrs. Tyrrell was sentenced to a short term at Sherborn, the Massachusetts women's reformatory, in Superior Court at Boston in Jan. 1931. At that time she told police mother love drove her to steal.

DOG IN CONTEMPT—KEEPS ON BITING

Here is a dog that has broken a solemn order of Judge Good of the Central Municipal Court. Two weeks ago Joseph Rizzo, 23 Prospect st., West End, appeared in court with his dog on order of the judge. Judge Good warned the owner. Tried to warn the dog. But now something else must happen. What will it be? The dog has bitten Gaetano De Modixa, of 50 Hale st., West End. What will the court do? Veterinarians will examine this dog of many bites today to find what makes him bite, if possible. (Staff Photo.)

WILTON LACKAYE PASSES AWAY

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Wilton Lackaye, famous actor who made theater-goers from Maine to California shudder at the villainy of Svengali, died today at his home here in his 70th year.

Lackaye succumbed to a heart ailment after illness had kept him in "involuntary retirement" for most of five years.

Born in Loudon County, Virginia, he studied for a time for the priesthood, and then for the law before turning to the stage. His first wife, the former Alice Evans, died in 1919. In 1928, when he was 65, he secretly married Miss Kathryn Alberta Riley, who had nursed him through an illness. She survives, with his son, Wilton Lackaye, Jr., also an actor.

Lackaye was famous for occasional truculence. Broadway still talks about a difference of opinion between him and John J. McGraw, former leader of the New York Giants, during which Lackaye was thrown downstairs and suffered a fracture of the ankle. McGraw, denying that he did the throwing, was suspended from the Lambs Club for a while after the incident.

Lackaye first appeared in New York in 1883 as Lucentio in "Francesca da Rimini" and soon he was playing with Fanny Davenport's company in "Much Ado About Nothing."

Some of his roles were Robert Le Diable in "Allan Dare," the Spider in "The Silver King;" Capt. Gilchrist in "Bottle's Baby" and General Haverill in "Shenandoah." The famous hit by Augustus Thomas.

Girl About Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

Going Places:

Where painters paint, and troupers troupe
We barged right in to prowl and snoop
So here's a bit of real low down
About the folks of Provincetown.

Artists Cavorting:

Friday night . . . It's the Provincetown Art Association's annual Artists' Ball . . . We chat with Mrs. William H. Young in rose satin and black lace colonial costume . . . And such a coy, cute curl over her shoulder and with the most exquisite diamond drop ear decorations . . . She's sorry that she isn't dancing with her quiet, aristocratic husband Banker Young . . . They led the first grand march of the first ball, eighteen years ago . . . Her husband is president of the Association . . . She knows everybody! . . . She points out her son-in-law, Newton's Dr. Ernest McKenna as a Turkish gentleman . . . And his wife (Josephine Young), Brookline's George McGinnis as a shiek and German-costumed Warren Sullivan . . . All motored down from the Hub for the event . . . Fred L. Waugh's daughter, Mrs Clymer, beautifully gowned in an all-white Colonial costume, wins the first prize for the most artistically costumed . . . Mrs. Coulton Waugh, an adorable "Little Bo-peep" . . . Fred McKay front-page duelist, forgets Garbo long enough to lead the grand march, garbed as a sheik of varied colors, with Mrs W. H. Bicknell . . . J. C. Johnson, of the Associated Press, with his genius for imagination (the duel stories and the Lady-Godiva-will-ride-about tales) is not far behind McKay and dressed in a messenger's outfit . . . Antique collector, Peter Hunt, with jade scarf and Mexican sombrero, is a colorful marcher . . . As is blonde Mrs. John Noble, baby-dollish in fluffy blue . . . She's artist John Noble's frau . . . And earlier in the evening we caught him—all by himself—enjoying a strawberry soda at one of the town's fountains! . . . He's exhibited his art works in almost all of the European galleries, you know! . . . He's a romantic figure in his ten gallon hat and flowing artist's tie

Gayest of Steppers:

Was Felix Mahoney, Washington art instructor, well known in Boston, with his silver locks flying, much in the Charles Winneger manner, as he danced with Artist Reid's vivacious little wife . . . Attired in one of these imaginative grass skirt costumes . . . She's noted for her original costume ideas every year . . . George Elmer Browne, who takes Boston's young blades to Europe for study in the arts each year, chats with every one . . . Most bizarre costume is that of a black-chiffoned nun with the whitest of chassis mistily concealed! . . . Frail-looking Mrs. Charles Hawthrone, with her myriad of white hair framing her face, leans far over the balcony railing — conscientious in her judging of the costumed ones . . . Two tall raven-haired brunettes, smartly gowned in low-cuts, dance by as partners! . . . Two more gals, oh—so coy in romper suits, pass us with knock-knees much in evidence . . . To our mind the backless evening gowns of some of the Pretty Ones are much more nudey than the costumes . . . And much more ugly, on the whole! . . . The huge barny hall is stifling . . . And when the Tiger Rag screeches out, such a sea of flying arms . . . Wiggling bodies and swaying heads! . . . William McCaffery, who leads the home-town band, plays a swell fiddle, has personality plus . . . Smiles at his pretty Portuguese wife as she dances past . . . He's doing now the thing he loves—playing music . . . Much happier we hear than in his former religious vocation . . . So popular that he was elected as as Selectman in Provincetown not long ago . . . Nothing much happens of real excitement . . . Although we did hear about the nine folks locked up in the cellar later on by the village "constable" . . . Probably his annual pinching party . . . But we saw, or smelled, little inebriation . . . Very tame, from where we were!

A Bit Skeptical:

We wandered into the Church of the Redeemer . . . Which is most artistically decorated . . . The ceiling was painted by a famous German artist, Wendte, in 1847 when the church was built . . . It's a replica of the pagan Temple of Jupiter in Athens . . . Is frightfully weather beaten . . . But a member of the congregation confided to us "We would like to have it touched up, but you know we haven't found any one here we could trust with it!" . . . And Provincetown the Mecca of all America's creative artists! . . . Interesting how the old church was founded . . . By the Freeman sisters, who were walking along the beach one day . . . Found a book by John Murray that had been tossed up by the sea—off some ship . . . 'Twas the foundation history of Universalism . . . The sisters were so impressed with it that they built the church . . . We asked the congregation-lady if we could see the book . . . She answered, "My! I certainly wish we had that book but it was loaned to someone and they never returned it." . . . Imagine! A priceless book like that—probably kicking around someone's dusty garret right now! . . . So you see, even then it was nothing unusual for book-borrowers to forget, so easily!

CLYDE BEATTY TO MAKE ANIMAL FILM

Edward Anthony Author of "Man and Beast," New Jungle Epic

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Aug. 22—I think everyone who is interested in the study of wild animals will enjoy seeing Clyde Beatty train his jungle pets. Universal, influenced, I have no doubt, by the great popularity of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Congorilla," have engaged Mr. Beatty to make a picture showing his own methods of training the beasts of the jungle.

Louella O. Parsons

The Beatty picture will be tentatively titled "Man and Beast," and it is based on an unpublished book by Edward Anthony. Mr. Anthony collaborated with Frank Buck in producing "Bring 'Em Back Alive," and he is a specialist on jungle lore. This is a picture that will get the men into the theatre for most of them are loud in their praise of the above mentioned jungle epics.

"I believe I mentioned it or if I didn't mention it I should have, that there will be no more roles for Joel McCrea at radio, where he makes love to women stars. Joel is on his own now and stories are being purchased for him. His next when he finishes "Sport Page" will be "Three Came Unarmed," a novel by E. Arnot Robertson, which David Selznick bought with Joel in mind. It's the tale of three boys raised in the African jungle who go to London unprepared for civilization. Sounds sort of "Tarzan of the Ape-ish," does it not? John Cromwell will direct "Three Came Unarmed" as soon as he finishes the John Barrymore picture, "The Public Be Damned." Mr. Barrymore draws Gwili Andre, it seems, as his leading lady, and —Oh yes—the John Barrymore christening took place yesterday with all the trimmings.

Players Shifted

The borrowing and lending goes on like nobody's business at the Hollywood studios. Carole Lombard, one of Paramount's pet children, moves into Columbia for the lead in "Virtue." Constance Cummings moves out of Columbia and into Paramount for "Night After Night." Fair exchange is no robbery, you will admit. Connie is the pet daughter of Mr. Cohn and Company's studio and Mr. Paramount thinks well of Carole. Carole, who is not entirely recovered from her recent illness, has been away with her handsome husband, William Powell.

Carole Lombard

Pat Powers Back

His hat in the ring, Pat Powers, fighting Irishman, is again in the picture business. Pat has gone British and is now head man of Powers Pictures, Inc., releasing British International pictures in America. "We have already released twelve of these pictures," writes Mr. Powers, "and it is our aim to have available a minimum of twenty before the close of the current year (not season.) We have the absolute privilege of selection and rejection of each print." Mr. Powers wonders if his British films will have a chance in the theaters. I can answer that question by assuring him it all depends upon the quality of his pictures. Pat says that George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" is in production with G. B. showing an active interest.

Nancy Gets Lead

Certainly there have been many ifs and buts concerned in the production of "Not Saturday," which was originally intended for Carole Lombard. Nancy Carroll is now the leading lady and the cast is being selected for Nancy and is composed of many young players. Eddie Woods came back from New York, where he had been playing in stock, to take one of the leading roles. Eddie did so well in "Public Enemy" that Paramount, after taking a look at his test, sent a telegram for him to come back home, all was forgiven. Stanley Smith is another likely prospect. Stan has a great voice and I have wondered often why he hasn't had a chance to sing in pictures. He was due to sign today.

A Line or Two

Sidney Skolsky, diminutive columnist, grew so interested in "sport page" that he acted in a scene. Kubec Glasmon and John Bright, who write "Public Enemy" and other successes, have separated. Glasmon remains at Warners and his partner goes elsewhere. Allen Jenkins, who did a nice piece of work in "Blessed Event," has been handed a new contract by Warner Brothers. His next is "The Match King."

Classic Bits on Band's Program

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Out from its place around the corner, and into full view, comes prosperity in the progress of the RKO "Greater Show Season." The opening day for the new shows saw queues out in front of both Keith's and the Boston—Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians drawing them to the Memorial, while Texas Guinan and her troupe lured them to the sister house across the street. It did look as if the happy days were here again, the good old days when vaudeville was wont to "stand 'em up," week in, week out.

At Keith's. Full stage, lights alluringly dim — "pin spot," soft hued, playing up the girl harpist in the center of the superbly set orchestra. Fred Waring and the fetching Lane sisters have just sung "The Village Choir"—then wondrous tones—Schubert's "Ave Maria" sung as only John McCormack can sing it—then the applause!

That's just one episode in the Waring Show, and it proves that the maestro knows this theater business. That "Village Choir" number is a sidelight, and its "Ave Maria" climax is a gem.

All the other numbers excel too. The collegiate revels "Bolero" and the domino finale, are all classy. Fred Waring is an expert at this sort of thing and we may add that his is one of the two best bands we have ever seen on the vaudeville stage.

Brother Tom shares in the evening's laurels, sufficient for the Waring boys and all their co-stars, which include two clever little girls, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, sisters, we are informed, of Lola and Leota Lane. We miss Evalyn Nair, but are assured she will join the troupe at today's performances.

The rest of the bill is not up to standard, with the exception of Vic Oliver, who stirs up a billowy sea of audience enthusiasm, gets across humor and music and what-not of personality, and finishes in a blaze of glory and applause.

Laughter is the order of the day on screen, where Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler slam-bang their way through abundant "gags" in "Hold 'Em Jail."

Elissa Scores at Fenway

"Passport to Hell" and "Congorilla" are featured on the double program at the Fenway, Modern and Beacon. In the former, Elissa Landi does superb work with a swell cast about her, including Paul Lukas, Warner Oland, Alexander Kirkland, and a number of other oldtimers.

Big Fight in Boston? Signs Point That Way. Intentional Lay Off. ↕ Busy Season Looming. Plenty of Hub Cards. Game Is Coming Back.

Big Boom About Due in Cauliflower Market

STRIKE ME PINK. Old Onion, as they say on Fleet st., but we have a hunch that the powers that be in the Cauliflower Patch are ribbing up us Bostonians for a Big Fight. We may be all wet, as the Professor of English at deah ol' Harvard would say, but this utter absence of fistic action all along the Boston sector of the Cauliflower front, looks to us to be a premeditated, shrewdly engineered, strategetic move by the master minds to cultivate a fistic longing in our hearts, Louise, and make us take the Big Fight bait, line, hook and sinker. For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain the Cauliflower magnates have Bret Hart's heathen Chinee backed off the boards. They're not laying low, hobbling their tongues for nothing. They're creating a demand for scrambling ears here. When the low, meaning, undertone of famished fight fans gets loud enough they'll supply it. Consider a few of the signs along the fistic trail.

THE ALL POWERFUL Madison Square Garden Corporation, which holds a monopoly on the Cauliflower Market that makes U. S. Steel and Standard Oil look like pikers, has closed up its fistic shop in the Boston Garden all summer. Doors darkened and no move to hold forth in ball park bouts as usual. Not a tinkle of the fight gong, a scrape of feet on the resin, or a thud of upholstered maulie on protruding beaks. Silent, strangely silent, and idle, strangely idle, both Jonathan Buckley and Danyell Carroll, owners of the two biggest fistic stables in this neck of the woods. The Boston Garden, New England Branch of the all powerful Madison Square Garden Corporation, and Managers Buckley and Carroll, constitute the fistic powers that be in this neck of the woods. And you can wager all the tea that was dumped into the harbor the night of the big Tea Party that the Big Three—the Garden, Buckley and Carroll—are not all staying idle and actionless for nothing. Oh Di Mi, No! They all love the old Do Ri Mi too much.

NOT SO LONG AGO, Johnny Buckley went so far as to say that he thought Boston was ripe for a big fight and that Sharkey probably would defend his world's heavyweight championship here on home home soil, "next year." Maybe Jack Sharkey is going to wait until "next year" before he crawls through the ropes in a Boston ring, and maybe he isn't. But if you still have any tea from the Tea Party left over, wager that if it isn't Jack Sharkey, who will be seen in some big Boston fight within a 25 mile radius of the Capitol's gold dome, fairly soon, a fight only secondary to a Sharkey match will be staged here before the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder in the shock.

THOSE WHO KNOW their fistic onions declare that Boston can look forward to a great winter indoor boxing season. Boston winter cards have not been "knocked off," like they have in New York with the Madison Square Garden entourage holding forth in the Long Island bowl, Tim Mara operating in Yankee Stadium, and Humbert Fugazy holding forth across the Bridge in Brooklyn. The corrugated conks of N. Y. matchmakers will take on more wrinkles than Dad's old suit worrying and scheming over their winter fistic menus. The Gothamites have wasted a whole flock of fistic attractions and built up only one boxer, Isidore Gastagna, the Argentinian, for the winter market. And Gastagna's box office powers may seriously be impaired if they put on the Carnera-Gastagna match at Ebbets Field, as is being talked about.

NOT SO BOSTON. Local fans have been given a needed fistic rest. Appetites, surfeited with too much boxing, have been restored. Denying the fistic fans their favorite dishes has created a longing, appetite for them. Yes, we know that Eddie Mack has been running summer open air shows, but top notch attractions have been conspicuous by their absence. Maxey Rosenbloom has been about the only real headliner featured and Maxey isn't a leading Boston card. The real Boston attractions, Lou Brouillard, Johnny Indrisano, Ernie Schaaf, Sammy Fuller, have been kept under cover.

EDDIE MACK'S activities haven't hurt winter boxing. Eddie has helped it. He has introduced some first class preliminary boys and built up one prospective headliner in Ad Zachow. The Dilboy Field bouts have served to introduce a budding box office magnet in Steve Pailius, the young Athol Annihilator, who has been knocking 'em all cuckoo. That is what the game needs more than anything else—hitters. Sockers, choloroformers, dynamiters, the boys with the old fashioned wallop! Bring them on, the more the merrier!

BOSTON HAS A whole flock of good fistic attractions to toss in the pot when the winter fistic stew starts boiling. The summer layoff is restoring interest and enthusiasm in the game and the promoters will do a big winter's business. Boxing, like business in general, is on its way back. The pendulum has started to swing the right way again. It will be another year, perhaps, before interest wanes in wrestling and boxing regains all its lost ground. The grunt and groan game may attract the major interest here in the Hub this winter, but by next year boxing will be back in all its pristine glory and the grunt and groaners again will have to play second fiddle to the gents of the scrambled ears.

WRESTLING, BOXING, move in cycles. In wrestling in particular, there is no steady, healthy interest that there is in baseball, football, hockey. Wrestling has been on the crest of the wave longer this time than usual, but there are signs that the ebb tide is setting in. You can't keep healthy, steady interest in a sport which is fed to the fans week in, week out, over a stretch of years, with no rest periods such as have baseball, hockey, football. As we ofttimes have told you even Pat would get tired of his corned beef and cabbage, if the good woman set it in front of him every day in the week. Boxing's depression was owing to too much of a good thing. Wrestling is beginning to feel the overproduction and the turn of the cycle is approaching.

FIGHT FANS, HOW do you feel about it yourselves? Didn't you, like this humble scribe, get heartily sick of the leather tossing game? A fight club on every corner. A fight almost every day in the week. The same old faces, the same boresome, eternal hit and clinch, hit and clinch style of milling. Not a budding Dempsey among 'em. Not a kick in the whole carload. We all got mighty sick of it all, didn't we? So you stayed away, I stayed away, everybody stayed away from the cauliflower patches. But, now that we've stayed away for awhile, honest to goodness, aren't you all begining to feel a longing for the Old Gal? Down in the corners of your heart are you getting a tckling? Don't you find yourself saying sometimes, "Gee, I'd like to see a good scrap?" Yeah, we're getting that way too. That's why we say the old Game is on its way back.

TIGERS MEET ANDREWS AT FENWAY

By JOE CASHMAN

Ivy Paul Andrews, latest white-haired boy of Boston fandom and the Red Sox only winning pitcher, will attempt to add the Detroit Tigers to his long list of victims in the fourth game of the current series at Fenway Park, this afternoon.

With his baffling mound magic and omnipresent million-dollar smile, the lad from Dora, Ala., has captivated the customers as have very few, if any, others who have broken into the local baseball picture of recent years.

Tell them Andrews is going to pitch and they take it for granted that the last-place Sox will win, no matter what the opposition. He hasn't as yet succeeded as a Tiger tamer, but you'll seek in vain to get a bet against him this p. m.

IVY A BASEBALL IDOL

Wherever baseball is the topic hereabouts these days, you'll hear little but praise for Ivy. The boys and girls, too, will tell you all about his triumphs, how he wires his mother after every victory, how smart Bob Quinn was to acquire him and what a sensation he is going to be next season.

They may leave out what he cost. You see, he even has made most of them forget that a certain Danny MacFayden once sported Fenway livery.

Which is more than Somerville Danny has done in New York. The gang over there still remembers Ivy Paul very vividly and is hopping all over Joe McCarthy for letting him come here in exchange for the "Deacon." All of Mac's other moves have met with unanimous approval, but every time "Poison Ivy," as opponents aptly call our hero, wins a game for the Red Sox, the Yankee pilot is the victim of a storm of criticism.

NEW YORK FANS KICK

The Gothamites can't be blamed much for hollering, either. A winning pitcher with the Red Sox ought to be unbeatable with the Yanks and MacFayden hasn't done any better over there than Andrews has done here.

Ivy Paul's last two games were classics. He whipped the champion Athletics with six hits and then turned back the Browns with the same number of safeties.

"Who can survive in face of such effectiveness?" asks Marty McManus.

"The Tigers, with the veteran George Uhle twirling," answers Bucky Harris, enemy pilot.

Bucky may be right. But nobody will believe him. With Andrews primed to work, the fans figure the Sox already are as good as even in their engagement with the Bengals.

Slattery, Belanger Fight in Buffalo

CUBS CHANCE EXCELLENT TO WIN FLAG

The Chicago Cubs' chances of winning the National League pennant appear very bright and rosy today.

As a result of their Sunday victory over the Phils, while the Giants were knocking off the second-place Dodgers, the Windy City athletes increased their lead in the race to 2½ games, according to the figures, and to five full games, as the ball players determine standings.

Victories mean nothing to the men in the business. Defeats alone interest them. The Dodgers have won one more game than the Cubs, but they have lost six more. Consequently, they are regarded as trailing by six games. The third place Pirates, who have won four less but lost one less than the Dodgers, are rated as Cubs closest rival.

To the average fan, this may not sound logical. The ball players' explanation is that a game lost can never be won while all unplayed games can be set down as possible if not probable victories.

The Pirates, who trail the Dodgers by 1½ games, would seem to be the lowest contender in the race, which a week ago numbered six strong contestants.

The Phillies, in fourth place with 61 victories and the same number of defeats, are seven games behind. A little too far back to be considered dangerous. The Braves and Cards, the other erstwhile contenders, are eight games in the rear and only a game up on the seventh-place Giants.

There can be no change in the positions of the leaders this afternoon, when the Cubs tackle the Phils again, the Pirates take on

By JOE MOONEY

The 51st renewal of the national doubles championship, which amounts to a census of the world's tennis luminaries will get underway at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill today.

While the draw for this year's battle is generally regarded as one likely to furnish drastic upsets before the tournament is well along, the favorites, headed by defending champions Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn and the three foreign seeded teams topped by Bunny Austin and Fred Perry of England should sail through the first round without difficulty.

With nine of the first ten ranking players of the world in the tournament, picking the probable champions or even the finalists is largely a matter of personal opinion.

FRENCH STARS IN PLAY

If the draw runs at all true to form, however, the quarter finals should find Allison and Van Ryn, Vines and Gledhill, Perry and Austin and Cochet and Bernard constituting the field.

Henri Cochet, France's No. 1 court star, and his 18 year old partner, Marcel Bernard, who is making his debut at Longwood this week, will naturally occupy a prominent part in the week's play, but it is doubtful if the French team will get much beyond their third round match with Mangin and Bell, seeded No. 3 for the Americans.

The French players of the four leading tandems drew the easiest of opponents in the draw. Satoh and Kuwabara, the Japanese, were less fortunate.

FIRST ROUND FRAYS TODAY

First round matches scheduled for today include those of Vines and Gledhill vs. Bryan and McDiarmid, Allison and Van Ryn vs. Dr. G. Colket Caner and Henry R. Guild, Mangin and Bell vs. Bruneau and Burns of New York, Austin and Perry vs. H. E. and E. J. Fuller of Salem, Cochet and Bernard vs. R. B. Thurber and R. B. Thurber, Jr., of Boston; Sidney Wood and Lester Stoeffen vs. the Harvard team of Earl Pfaffman and Bill Ingraham, and Lott and Shields vs. Malcom T. Hill of Brookline and Kenneth Werner of Los Angeles.

If the Newport Casino tournament just ended is the forecast of this week's tournament at Longwood, lanky Ellsworth Vines and his partner, Keith Gledhill, will be heavy favorites to win the crown.

VINES RISKS NET CROWN SEPT. 3

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Tennis stars of six natioons will seek the national singles tennis crown, now held by Ellsworth Vines, at the West Side Club Sept. 3 to 10 inclusive.

Vines' opposition this year will come not only from high-ranking players from this country but from French, British, Japanese, Italian and Canadian aces as well.

For France the burden will be carried by Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard with the former seeking the title for the second time. He won last in 1928. The British threat will be furnished by H. W. Austin, Fred Perry, J. S. Oliff and E. R. Avory. Japan will be represented by T. Kuwabara and Jiro Satoh; Italy by Giorgio De Stefani, and Canada by Marcel Rainville and Gilbert Nunns, among others. Of these Cochet, Kuwabara are the No. 1 ranking players of their respective countries.

SEXTON SETS SHOT MARK AT 52, 11¼

Cleveland, Aug. 22—Leo Sexton of the New York A. C. startled a crowd of 50,000 track fans here at a free municipal athletic meeting when he put the 16 pound shot 52 feet, 11¼ inches to smash his own world's record of 52 8⅝ inches.

Sexton was one of a number of U. S. Olympic team performers who competed here, in a meet staged for the entertainment of the unemployed.

The record put by the former Georgetown athlete was the outstanding performance of the affair.

Sexton last winter set a new mark indoors, then went on to set the 52-8⅝ mark in the Harvard Stadium tryouts at Cambridge, Mass.

McGraw Is Not Yet Through

By BILL CORUM

New York, Aug. 22—The hair of the man behind the desk was whiter than it had been the last time we sat down together to talk over this and that, not to mention pro and con. He was fleshier and some of the worry lines seemed to have been ironed from around his sharp, quick eyes.

"You're getting fat," we told him.

"The same to you and many of 'em," he replied without hesitation.

So we shifted the conversation from waistlines to baselines by mutual consent.

It was my idea that anything the man behind the desk might have to say about baseball might be better than the remarks of a green hand. His name was John J. McGraw.

DISLIKED "MUGGSY"

In his time John has had many nicknames, among them The Little Napoleon, The Master Mind, and Muggsy. He liked none of these and despised the last, which was hung on him in the days when he was a scrappy young third baseman, about, I should say, 65 pounds lighter than he is today.

A picture of the young Johnnie McGraw of the Olean, N. Y., nine in the naughty nineties hung behind his desk, and the only way

IT TOOK HELEN SIX YEARS TO BECOME QUEEN

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Aug. 22 (INS)—Today, we bow in sincere tribute to Helen Jacobs, a really great tennis player who had the courage to live down the years of failure and become at last the national champion in tennis singles.

Tomorrow, and doubtless for several years thereafter, the title must revert to that greatest of champions of the present generation, Helen Wills Moody, who is to return to rule again with the urgent, insistent power of her strokes.

After that, another and younger and perhaps better player may move in and take possession, with none to say her nay. For purposes of clearer identification, I'm talking about a 20-year-old girl from Los Angeles, Carolin Babcock, who couldn't win more than four games from Miss Jacobs in yesterday's final round.

It wasn't close. In fact, it wasn't even a match. Miss Jacobs won, 6—2, 6—2, taking 31 minutes and not a great deal of trouble in winning from this young upstart from down Los Angeles way.

HARDER EACH YEAR

But that was this year. Next year, Miss Jacobs will win less easily. The following year, it will

So What?

By JOE MOONEY

Some people are born pessimists. They won't believe the story about the 1000-pound tuna fish caught off Graves Light yesterday unless they see the can it came in.

In fact, Charlie Smith, who captured the tuna, is thinking of moving into the fish and sending his house to the taxidermist's.

The Finns certainly produce the athletes — like Couhig, Hicks and McDonough. The only famous athlete missing from the Worcester games was Finn McCool.

Still, the boys can always claim that their names are as Finnish as Stella Walsh's is Polish.

And as the Warner Brothers said to Greta Garbo—we tank we go Holm now, too.

MARTAK MAY RACE ZABALA

Clyde Martak of Baltimore, winner of the National A. A. U. Marathon, and Percy Wyer, runner-up in the Washington race, have been invited to race with Juan Zabala, Olympic Marathon victor, Paul DeBruyn, winner of this year's B. A. A. Marathon, Jimmy Henigan, and the field in the International Marathon under the auspices of the Olympic Club, at Rockingham Park on Sunday.

Zabala, whose Olympic Marathon victory was an outstanding feat of the Olympics, was expected in Boston today.

BRAVES TAKE TWO SHOTS AT CARDS TODAY

PLAY OF TRIBE IS TALK OF CIRCUIT

St. Louis, Aug. 22—A rare sight will be witnessed here today—a doubleheader between the Cardinals and Boston Braves.

So few will attend Monday games in this city, that they are usually shifted to make Sunday synthetic doubleheaders. This couldn't be done in the current series, but the Braves, after winning the first Sunday game in 14 innings, stayed tied with the Cards in the nightcap until darkness halted the tilt at the end of the sixth.

And since the visitors don't come back this year, the playoff had to be ordered for today, thus creating a rare thing here, a twin bill on Monday.

Local fans will see their first Monday pair in years. Or, at least, the game will be there for them to attend if they wish.

BRAVES FIGHTERS

It has long been a mystery in the Mound City how the Braves have managed to stay in the pennant hunt this season. It is no longer. A team with the "guts" possessed by the McKechniemen couldn't be anywhere else but in the title running.

The Warriors haven't won many games on this jaunt, but they have inflicted so much punishment that every Western rival is mighty glad they're not coming this way again this season.

They are a tired group, but they just don't know when they're licked. After games of 19 innings and 15 innings in Chicago, they should have been exhausted when they reached here. Instead, they have kept right on marathoning at full speed against the Cards.

WIN OUT IN 14TH

Losing the opening verdict in 10 innings, after overcoming a four-run lead, didn't discourage them a bit. They overcame another four-run lead in the first Sunday tilt and finally won out, 7 to 5, in the 14th.

They tossed away a two-run lead in the nightcap, but they locked the door every time the Cards tried to eneak into the lead.

Accordingly, they went back into a tie for fifth place with the Cardinals.

14TH FOR BRANDT

Ed Brandt chalked up his 14th victory of the season in the opener, outpitching Bill Hallahan and Dizzy Dean. The big southpaw gave a run in the second and four in the third. After that, he hurled 11 scoreless frames.

Hallahan was relieved in the eighth, after the Braves had tied the score.

Old Tom Zachary, another southpaw, toed the hill for the hostiles in the nightcap. Allyn Stout was his versus. Wally Berger put the Tribe in front with a home run with one on in the second. The Cards tied the count in the third.

Three scoreless frames and darkness followed.

JOHNNY DUNDEE IN COMEBACK

New York, Aug. 22 (INS)—Benny Leonard started it. Now all the old ring champions want new fame and money. Johnny Dundee, the famous veteran who is now almost 39 years old, will box Al Dunbar, New York, 1 0rounds here Thursday night. He has been out of the ring about three years.

Sands Point Wins

New York, Aug. 22 (INS)—With Tommy Hitchcock leading the attack with six goals, the Sands Point polo team today held a 14 to 4 victory over the Aurora four in the Knox Cup series.

TALKING PUTTS, BUT SINKING SINKERS

SHADE ENDS WORK FOR GO WITH CONRAD

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

There will be a flock of ring fans at Kelley & Hayes gym today to put the peek on the veteran dancing master of the leather-pushing business, Dave Shade, who completes his training there for his fight tomorrow night with Norman Conrad at Fenway Park.

Although the dazzling Dave has been punching around in middleweight alley for any number of years he is still the crafty and cagey boxer that Hub fans have admired for a long, long time.

Age has taken toll of his legs and arms but that fighting brain of Shade's seems to get more canny with the rolling on of years and fistic battles.

The veteran wants to beat Conrad and to give him a boxing lesson. There isn't much for Dave to gain by beating the New Hampshire youth for the fire of title ambition has long since faded. But Shade still can use the old do-re-mi and wants to stay up there with the top-notchers so that his services will be in demand every now and then.

Eddie Mack, Agonne A. A. promoter for whom Shade has again visited Boston, has arranged a long program of fighting preliminaries. There will be three six-round bouts and four three-round clashes supporting the main fracas.

More action is in store at Lincoln Park tonight in the South End where the wrestlers will do a bit of grunting and groaning for the customers. The main mix-up at Lincoln Park finds Red Anderson battling Oddilee Marchionne.

Marchionne and Anderson met at Lincoln Park last week, and went ?fteen minutes to a draw. At this time they will wrestle to a positive finish, with two falls out of three to win. The semifinal will bring together Eddie Giles of Tufts, and Young Nemo in a no time limit bout, with one fall to win.

LILLIAN DAVIS FIRST IN MILE

More than 9000 bathers and other spectators attended the Columbus Park swim meeting conducted by the Park Department at South Boston.

Gordon Connolly, Boston S. A., John Higgins, Providence, and Lillian Davis won Boston S. A. New England senior titles.

Connolly copped the 220-yard title, Higgins took the men's New England medley title over 300 yards, and Miss Davis, after a most grueling struggle won the New England women's mile championship.

In this senior mile swim four starters swam, Miss Davis, Florence McVay of the Providence B. C. A., Millicent Cramp of the Whitin C. A. and Gussie Schnabel of the B. S. A.

Miss Davis and Miss McVay fought stroke for stroke for the entire distance.

Miss Davis touched the raft a fraction of a second before her foe and was given the title. The time, 29m 15 3-5s, was good.

MISS BABCOCK FUTURE QUEEN OF COURT

be a tennis match with Carolin probably winning in three sets. In fewer words, potentially the better tennis player lost yesterday.

She has the game right now. All she needs is the poise and assurance that comes with experience. Miss Jacobs ddin't have it herself when she made the first of five attempts to storm her way to the championship that finally before her yesterday.

23 YEARS OLD.

She's only 23 now, but the extra year has done much for Miss Jacobs's smoothness and aplomb and general class. She mightn't have beaten Mrs. Moody yesterday, for the old champion has shown conclusively that she has something on the new.

But Miss Jacobs has come on so far that only really great tennis can now win from her, a fact clearly established by her record in this tournament.

She lost only one set through a week of intensive, back-breaking play. She's more deft in her stroking, more accurate, possibly a better tactician and certainly a more resolute opponent.

It is my idea, however, that Miss Babcock will go farther. She Hasn't Miss Jacobs' service now. But she'll get it. She hasn't Helen's new coolness under fire. But she'll get that, too. Otherwise, this little girl with an expression of serious as to be almost droll has a variety and command of strokes astonishing in one who is ranked no better than No. 8 on the coast.

Flynn Grappling for Title Tussle

Art Flynn will be seeking a championship match with Steve Passas when he steps in against Mephisto in the main wrestling bout at Fenway Park next Wednesday night.

Flynn has been coming along fast and if he can push Mephisto out of his path he will be in line for a bout with the present light-heavyweight title-holder, Passas.

The semifinal match has Bill Brooks meeting George Myerson.

GOLF KINGS OPEN BATTLE TOMORROW

By BILL GRIMES

Thousands of golf enthusiasts will be attracted to Winchester tomorrow morning and Brae Burn Wednesday afternoon when Francis Ouimet, national amature champion, and Gene Sarazen, holder of both the United States and British open titles, will meet in a 36-hole exhibition match.

Ouimet and Sarazen are the two outstanding golfers of the world. Between them they hold about all of the worthwhile titles. For 20 years, Francis has been rated among the world's greatest amateurs. He has held the United States open championship, twice led the pack in the nationals, captured the state title six times and this year he won the Mass. open at Oyster Harbors.

Sarazen is second only to Walter Hagen as a money getter. He broke into fame ten years ago when, an unknown, he captured the United States open championship at Skokie. The same year he won the P. G. A., which he defended successfully the following year.

GENE AT BEST THIS YEAR

From 1923 to 1930, Gene's only outstanding achievement was winning the Metropolitan open in 1925, although he was in the thick of the fight for the U. S. open title at Worcester. Two years ago, Sarazen won the Agua Caliente $25,000 and the Western opens, but his crowning feat came this spring when he took both the British and the United States open championships.

Sarazen arrived in town early yesterday morning and immediately started for Brae Burn, and in the afternoon he visited Winchester. Gene will play at Winchester and Brae Burn again today, for he realizes that he must carry a perfect knowledge of both courses in the Ouimet match.

For weeks, Sarazen has been touring the country playing exhibitions. Recently, he has been conditioning himself for his 36-hole grind with Francis. He was to have played in Providence yesterday but decided that it would be to his advantage to get in as much practice as possible at Winchester and Brae Burn.

GREATEST SHOT MAKERS

In watching Ouimet and Sarazen, the gallery will witness two of the greatest shot makers in the world in action. Ouimet and Sarazen are both at the very peak of their games. Ouimet started to click last year and wound up by winning the U. S. amateur while Sarazen has finally mastered the art of perfect concentration, the lack of which cost him many titles.

Until this season, Sarazen had a strong tendency to allow himself to be upset over poorly played shots and tough breaks. According to reports, Sarazen's almost perfect golf at Sandwich and Fresh Meadows was the result of perfect concentration. He was deadly accurate in both the British and U. S. opens, and from start to finish of both of these classics he displayed the greatest degree of confidence and self-control.

On the other hand, Francis Ouimet has never been affected by temper during any type of golf match. Francis is the coolest golfer that ever stepped out on any links. He possesses the happy faculty of absolutely ignoring any bad shot or kick which gets him into trouble.

Sarazen is particularly anxious to take Francis over the jumps, due to the fact that the national amateur champion holds a 36-hole decision over Walter Hagen.

If any amateur is destined to win an open championship, the professionals, without exception, will select Francis Ouimet for that honor. Among the pros, as among others, Ouimet has few peers in general popularity.

JOHN M'GRAW THINKS CUBS GOOD BET

you might have recognized it as being the same man was by a certain expression around the eyes. The McGraw of the Olean nine was a lean and limber-looking feller.

But I wanted to say about the nicknames that if you wished to follow out the one naming him The Little Napoleon that this McGraw is no Napoleon of Saint Helena. Of Elba, perhaps, but he has met no Waterloo.

JOHN COMING BACK

Barring the unforeseen he'll be back with his name in the lights as sure as you're alive, though it is doubtful if he will ever lead a ball team on the field again. He doesn't know yet just how the cards are going to fall, and neither does anybody else apparently, but his hat's still in the ring.

"What are your ideas on the pennant race in your league?" we asked him.

"It's too wild to have any set ideas," he replied, "but the Cubs have the pitching and first place, and pitching wins pennants, and possession is nine points of the law. We should know more after this swing of the Eastern teams through the West.

"If Brooklyn stays close until it gets back to Ebbets Field it's going to be hard to handle. Finishing at home should be a particular advantage to Carey's team. First, because it is a good home club and, second, because of the well-known enthusiasm of the Brooklyn fans.

"Crowds make ball games, and when it is getting enthusiastic support from the fans a team is apt to play a little over its head if necessary. Young teams, such as Pittsburgh's, have been known to crack under that pressure, but the Brooklyn players are, for the most part, pretty well seasoned. There is no question but what they have a good chance.

"Nor," continued McGraw, "would I be too hasty in counting out some of those other teams. So many things have happened this year that the unexpected is the thing to expect. The Phillies have a lot of power and can raise the very devil in that little old home park of theirs. They also can cause trouble if they are still within striking distance when they get back to Philadelphia.

BRAVES OUT OF LUCK

"The Giants have been getting an improved brand of pitching. Take Mooney's game in Cincinnati the other day. It was the best game he'd pitched since last fall. Hoyt has helped and Terry has been hitting hard.

"The Braves have been losing too many close ones of late. When you keep losing those one-run and extra-inning affairs you're strictly out of luck. A team can't expect to go far unless it wins its fair share of those."

EQUIPOISE GREAT

Just then somebody telephoned to invite McGraw to Saratoga and this switched the conversation from baseball to racing. After we had compared hard-luck notes, I asked John if he thought Equipoise was as good a horse as Man O' War.

He thought he might be even better, he said. Pointing out how Man O' War had been retired at the very peak of his career before he had been asked to meet the handicap field and give it weight, to told how Equipoise had simply breezed to Gusto at Saratoga recently.

"I'm surprised that Fitz (Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons) is going to send Faireno against him in the Hawthorne Gold Cup. He made such a show of Gusto, I don't see how he figures Faireno has any chance to down him," he went on. "When Equipoise starts running all the others look as if they were tied. Workman knows him so well he knows just when to let him down, and when he does it ceases to be a horse race."

RAN OUT OF GLASSES

I told him how Equipoise had run right out of my field glasses during the Metropolitan this spring. I had the glasses right on him as he started to circle the field and then, as if by magic, he was gone. At first I was afraid he had run out, so I looked along the outside fence. There was no sign of him there. Then I looked back at the field to see if he had dropped back and behind horses. Still no Whitney colors.

Then I heard 'em cheering along the rails in front of the grandstand and there he was a half dozen lengths in front and just galloping again all by himself.

"That's the way he runs," agreed John. "He's got such a burst of speed that he doesn't have to run more than about an eighth in each race. Yes, I think he's just about as fine a horse as American racing has produced. He wins from five-eighths of a mile to a mile and a quarter with all sorts of weight up, what more can you ask?"

Which is a fair question.

But the answer is nothing.

The brown horse from Brookdale is the best we've seen in many a day, and the odd part of it is that Man O' War got more publicity in a week than he has had in his career. But, then, you can't show your press clippings to those placing judges.

HUB CLUBS MUFF STAR

MILTON KID STARS WITH CHISOX

By RILEY GRANNON

When will the Braves and Red Sox discover that the grass grows just as green on Greater Boston sandlots as it does on diamonds 1000 miles, more or less, from the corner of Summer and Washington sts.?

After such brilliant local products as "Pie" Traynor, Bump Hadley, Irving Burns, Mickey Cochrane and Bernie Friberg had been allowed to slip away from here, one would imagine that both Judge Fuchs and Bob Quinn would keep scouts following the every move of local semi-pro performers.

But if they do, the ivory hunters must always have their backs turned at the wrong time. Promising young players are still stepping from native obscurity to big league fame in other cities.

When the Chicago White Sox arrive at the Fens on Wednesday they'll bring with them a young man named Bill Chamberlain, a southpaw, who used to pitch at Milton High.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS STUFF

He has already worked in three games for the Pale Hose, and while he hasn't turned in a victory yet, it's not his fault. In his first start, he held the Senators to four hits in eight innings. In his second, he limited the Browns to six bingles in the same number of frames. His third effort saw him holding the Solons to four hits in five stanzas.

Both the Sox and Braves need a southpaw of that ability no more than a drowning person needs a life preserver.

And either could have had the Milton boy for the asking, or less. In fact, he sought a trial with one of them and would have gladly joined the other, if the opportunity had been offered.

Unable to get a nod from either, he applied to the White Sox on the advice of Joe Page, well known Canadian sportsman. After two sessions of pitching to batters he was signed by Manager Lou Fonseca.

STARRED FOR [illegible]ALS

He made his bow in an exhibition game against Montreal. He held the Royals to two hits in six innings and was [illegible] for seasoning.

He didn't stay long. His work was so good he was recalled to the Windy City within a few weeks. Today he is listed as one of the White Sox starting flingers.

Billy pitched four years at Milton High and then toiled for Dean Academy and St. Anselm's College. His schooling finished, he hurled in the Boston Twilight League and in the Cape Cod Circuit.

And all that time he failed to attract the attention of local scouts whose chief ambition always is to find capable southpaws.

Billy Chamberlain is 21, the youngest of a baseball family. He has three brothers, all of whom starred on high school diamonds. Richard, now a sergeant on the Milton police force, pitched at Milton High in 1912; John, a Milton patrolman, played first base at Milton High from 1914 to 1918 and Edward, who now lives in Maine, hurled for Stoughton High several years ago.

Billy led Milton High to its first victory over Milton Academy in 17 years. He also had several duels with Bobby Brown of the Braves, who was then hurling for Hingham High.

Billy's parents haven't seen him since the day he was signed by the White Sox. They are planning a big welcome for him when he returns to Milton this week.

Fish and Game

—By WIN BROOKS—

Scup are running in great numbers all along the southern Massachusetts coast and affording fine sport for the angler who goes equipped to give himself some fun and the fish a chance.

Some real big ones are being taken. John Harboard, at New Bedford, caught the largest of which I have heard—two ounces short of three pounds.

As regards fish and fishing, I try to keep my sun-glassed vision pantoscopic, viewing all sides of all arguments, but when an angler recently returned from Monument Beach and told me the scup was the poorest fighting fish he ever caught, aside from a cod, I lost a little patience.

An inquiry revealed he was fishing them on a hand line, not even on a salt water rod. And he's the same fellow who wouldn't venture onto a trout water with any rod heavier than four ounces.

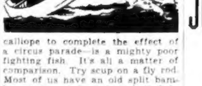
A salmon on an anchor rope—a salmon even on one of those tandem spoons that need only a steam calliope to complete the effect of a circus parade—is a mighty poor fighting fish. It's all a matter of comparison. Try scup on a fly rod. Most of us have an old split bamboo we've set from bass bait fishing. If you haven't tried it on scup you'll be surprised. An ounce or half-ounce clip-on sinker is plenty of weight.



With this rig you'll get a lot of action—to my mind nearly as much, pound for pound, as you'll get with squaretail brook trout—and when Mr. Scup finally turns those tegulated silver scales of his to the sun you'll feel like doffing the derby to a new-found gamester.

The waters off Monument and both Silver beaches, old and new, in Falmouth, are favorite scup grounds. Onset is good and boats are available. For the larger fish you need to get outside a little. My own favorite place, discovered and lined-up by the late Bill Dunham, Brockton angler and yachtsman, is a lemon bottom a half-mile south by west of Dry Ledge in Buzzard's Bay. It's hard to line up unless the tide is low enough to expose the ledge, but it's mighty worth while. Butterfish, scup and kingfish run there, and an occasional rock bass.

Bill Slaney and the Hon. Mrs. Bill Slaney of Weymouth, and Harold Farrand and the Hon. Mrs. Harold Farrand of Braintree, are back from a 10-day camping trip on the fresh waters of Cape Cod, prepared to testify that the bass fishing in the Cape ponds is still darn good, despite the hot weather and lack of rain.

They spent most of their time on Lawrence pond, at Sandwich and everybody but Bill says he was high-line. They caught no record fish but took an abundance of good fighters up to three pounds, mostly on shrimp. The beauty of Cape fishing, as was demonstrated by occasional visits to the breakwater for tautaug and flounder, is the availability of variety.

Big muskies, up to 18 pounds, are coming out of Lake Champlain, off

Burlington, on No. 7 spinners, silver, white and red . . . Nothing there to cramp your style; there's 35 miles of deep trolling . . . The Squanicook river in Townsend will apparently have to be one of the two public trout fishing grounds to be opened in the spring . . . There seems to be nothing better available east of Worcester . . . Big flights of yellowlegs seem to assure an open season next year or in 1934.

JOE WALCOTT IS IN BELLEVUE HOSPITAL

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—A heart condition has sent 60-year-old Joe Walcott, former world's welterweight champion, to Bellevue Hospital.

The "Barbados Demon" of 30 years ago collapsed on the street yesterday and was taken to the hospital where the diagnosis was "arterio sclerosis and senile psychosis."

But the aged negro, called by many experts the greatest fighter of his weight in boxing history, is not worrying overmuch.

"I've had these attacks before," he said. "Maybe I'll be all right in a couple o fdays."

LIVED IN BASEMENT

Walcott has been living for some time in the unlighted basement of a building on West 57th st., maintaining himself on the small sums he could pick up as a referee or an instructor to Harlem's ring aspirants.

At the peak of his form at the turn of the century, Joe took on lightweights, welterweights, midleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights indiscriminately although he himself tipped the beam at no more than 137 pounds.

The bigger fellows were easy for him, but he often had trougle with men of his own weight, notably Kid Lavigne, Kid Carter, Tommy West and Mysterious Billy Smith.

KAYOED JOE CHOYNISKI

Probably his greatest feats were his knockout of Dan Creedon, redoubtable Australian, in one round, and his technical knockout in seven rounds of Joe Choyniski, the light heavyweight who gave Jim Corbett such a battle for 28 rounds.

SAINTS FACE CRAWFORDS TONIGHT

Fred Rossi's Crawford Club, late entry in the City League, can dim the championship glint of the St. Catherine's nine when these teams clash at South Boston tonight.

The Charlestown Saints have been up near the top of the second half race for the City loop title since it started, but must win tonight to keep up there.

Ray Finnegan's St. Mark's nine is in a similar position to that of St. Catherine's. Tonight they face the jinx club in the league for them, the Mulveys of Roxbury, at the Dorchester Town Field.

St. Mark's has been fighting hard to get somewhere, but the Mulveys have caused them an overdose of headaches. If Finnegan's club can hurdle Mulveys tonight they'll be more confident of climbing up on the leaders.

Roslindale will take no chances of slipping off the City League roost tonight when they entertain the Maddens at Healy Field. George Walker will send to the mound Jim Shea, Roslindale ace.

Malden Athletics plan to duplicate Arlington Pals' victory over North Cambridge K. C. when the Cantab Caseys invade Ferryway Green for a Suburban Twi League game tonight.

Stoneham Cubs, hard on the heels of Revere K. C. for fifth place, entertain Dillon Club tonight.

SCHAAF DUE IN CHI WEDNESDAY

Chicago, Aug. 22 (INS)—Ernie Schaaf of Boston will arrive in Chicago Wednesday to open a week's training for his 10-round battle at Chicago Stadium with Max Baer, California heavyweight, on August 31. Promoters announced today that Jack Sharkey, co-handler of Schaaf, will come here to supervise activities in his protege's corner.

LANDLUBBERS FOIL DEATH IN 49-DAY TRIP

Gibraltar, Aug. 22 (AP)—Five young landlubbers, all undergraduates of Princeton University, have conquered the Atlantic in a two-master in 49 days despite storm and calm.

The adventure began in New York, July 2, and will end, for the time being at least, in Marseilles, when the craft reaches there.

The venturesome team lost five sails in a heavy blow and spent 14 days in various spots of dead calm. They are: William Drewrey, New York; William L. Crow, New York; Standish Backus, Detroit; Ashley Hardy, Boston, and Robert Keidie, Baltimore.

"We sailed from New York July 2, reaching Marblehead five days later. We made the Azores July 28, leaving for Tangiers July 31, and arriving there August 16. We reached Gibraltar Saturday for provisions.

"Although we were inexperienced when we started the cruise, we had no trouble navigating our ketch, the Stortebecker, after the first few days.

"A gale struck us on the fourth day after quitting Marblehead, and we had to heave to and drop the sea anchor for 18 hours. Two days later we encountered a storm which carried away five sails, and held us up for five days.

"In all that blow, our 21-ton craft was never in danger of sinking.

BECALMED 14 DAYS

"We met plenty of head winds, but the so-called 'prevailing southwest winds' were conspicuously absent. We also encountered many calms, totalling about 14 days. These we spent swimming, reading, playing games and listening to radio concerts.

"After leaving the Azores, we hailed the British steamer 'Pacific President' and went alongside to check our navagition position."

H. C. THOMPSON MADE RECEIVER

Former Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson today was appointed receiver in the bankruptcy case of Abraham M. Sussman of Davidson rd., Worcester, importer of amber and other merchanise, who is being sued for customs duties alleged to be owed the government.

The appointment was made by Daniel W. Lincoln, referee in bankruptcy, with approval of Federal court.

Sussman was recently sued for $150,000 by the government for customs duties on amber and linen exhibited at Harvard University. The entire display belonging to Sussman was seized and held by customs officials.

After the suit was brought, the importer filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities at $152,317.88, with assets of $138,067.45.

MISSING PAIR SAFE IN PORT

Adrift since Saturday in a crippled speedboat, Arthur H. Huey, chief house officer of Hotel Statler, and Norbert Linek of New Bedford reached port in New Bedford today.

The propeller shaft of the craft broke soon after the two left Pawtucket, R. I., Saturday noon for a trip to Linek's home, they said.

Through Saturday night and yesterday, Huey and Linek worked on temporary repairs, little knowing that planes and Coast Guard boats were searching for them. The repairs were completed last night and enabled them to reach port this morning.

U. S., FRANCE IN TRADE PARLEY

Paris, Aug. 22 (AP)—Negotiations for a Francoo-American commercial treaty entered the formal stage today when French and American experts in economics held their first meeting at a luncheon given at the American Embassy by the United States ambassador, Walter E. Edge.

Plans were outlined for future meetings at which the whole field of commercial relations between France and the United States will be explored.

It was decided that the experts would meet again shortly at the French ministry of commerce offices.

There has been considerable discussion here of the possibility that an Anglo-French trade treaty would be negotiated, one published report going so far as to say that negotiations would be opened this week. At the British Embassy it was stated no steps had been taken here thus far.

LONDON AIR CONCERT

Classical Music Comes Here Wednesday

By N. F. T.

TO ARMS! TWO EARS!
—one if by land, two if by sea,
Here on opposite shores I'll be.
Should invasion come by air,
My old loudspeaker will be there.

Typical British music, direct from Lunnon' town, is on the radio matinee menu Wednesday afternoon. Uncle Sam's CBS network has negotiated with our British Broadcasting Co. cousins to contribute a bit of a classic concert that day.

Half an hour has been set aside (WNAC) between 4:45 and 5:15 p. m. to accommodate listeners of this section with the relay. It originates in Queen's Hall, London, under the direction of Sir Henry Wood, noted BBC Symphony conductor.

AWARD ANNOUNCEMENT

Tonight holds a big surprise in store for at least four industrious young Americans. Announcement will be made, naming winners of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild competition, meaning $5000 university scholarships for each. These awards are bestowed during the big dinner of General Motors executives held in Detroit. Broadcasting festivities takes the "Parade of States" program place (WEEI) at 9:30 p. m. President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors, will welcome the visiting young craftsmen. Floyd Gibbons, headline hunter extraordinary, acts as master of ceremonies, describing all that happens for coast-to-coast air audiences.

CHAMPIONS THE CAUSE

Another one I simply cannot afford to miss is that "Evolution of the Radio Editor" talk featured during Bill Schudt's "Going to Press" period on Wednesday (WNAC) from 5 to 5:15. A chap named Edward Fisher, who is and has long been one of these here radio editors, will review the development of radio news and also touch on the type of "colyumning" now current in connection with what goes on behind "mikes" in sound sanctums. You tell 'em, Ed Fisher!

George Frame Brown (Matt Thompkins) has written a three-act play around "Thompkins Corners" rural life. His production goes out to tour the country beginning Sept. 26. Original radio characters are to appear. Present plans schedule the premiere showing for Philadelphia on the above date.

LOCAL LATHER

Ranny Weeks hasn't been broadcasting hereabouts very much lately, but does have a turn tonight (WNAC) 5.45 to 6 during the program of Ronnie and Van, those snappy harmony boys coming along so splendidly with their newest series . . . All things being equal two Hub half hour programs hanging fire for some time, should be signed, sealed and delivered, this week, activity starting at once. Indications are they won't both land on hte same station waves however, as so many seem sure about . . . Your Uncle N. F. T. is wondering what to say regarding a male soloist who sings sentimental songs and says letters received contain every adjective imaginable in praise. For example, our hero has admirers reported as terming his tones—Nice, Restful, Natural, Heavenly, Sweet, Pure, Cultured, Warm, Buoyant, Personable, Lovely, Mellow, Full Bodied, Refreshing, Divine, Strong, Dignified and even Manly . . . Wouldn't it be dandy if right here one could add "Modest" to all that; just as a sort of comment? . . . Impersonation of big time stars seems to be a talent almost entirely lacking locally, unless it is Hub "mike" lads and lassies are not given a real chance . . . One young lady aired an excellent impression of the late colored blues singer, Florence Mills, singing "Dixie Dreams" the other evening.

DOG SAVES MAN FROM FLAMES

Awakened by his mongrel dog, Sewell D. Pierce, 57, foreman of the W. K. Hutchinson farm in Arlington Heights, was forced to leap from a second floor window today as flames swept his home.

Pierce was asleep on the second floor and was sole occupant of the house because of a week-end trip of his wife to friends.

"Flossie," whom Pierce proudly referred to as "just a plain mongrel," awakened her master by loud barks and scratching.

Escape by the stairs was cut off and flames were dangerously near the canine heroine when the barks awakened him, Pierce said.

With the dog in his arms, Pierce jumped to the roof of a shed and then leaped to the ground.

Firemen had to play 2500 feet of hose to fight the blaze. The house was destroyed but the adjoining barn, several horses and cows and more than 100 turkeys were saved.

"Hell Divers" Return

Montreal, Aug. 22 (AP)—The "Hell Divers" squadron of the United States Marine Corps, which participated over the week-end in the Canadian air pageant here, took off this morning for Quantico, Va.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

However, as Mr. Einstein says, "all is relative."

That's quite a statement. Let's see if we can prove it.

This Mighty Magazine reaches 5,500,000 families, nearly double the number of families reached by any other publication.

By the simple process of long or short division you can see that the page cost of $16,000 is reduced to ⅓ cent per family.

No other magazine on earth can offer comparable economy.

Now measure the dimensions of that page.

It is more than twice the size of any other magazine page. That means room to tell your merchandising story with force and drama.

Coverage? National! From one coast to the other, The American Weekly concentrates and dominates in the richest buying areas.

Now, what about the magazine itself? Is it interesting? Do the people read it?

The American Weekly is the most widely read; the most quoted magazine published.

To sustain a circulation twice as great as any other publication requires that each issue of The American Weekly contain something of real interest to every member of the family.

Thrilling stories from real life—dramatically illustrated—and absorbingly told; fascinating tales of strange lands and weird people—made vivid and real for the stay-at-homes who yearn for travel; archaeology, astronomy, religion and the wonders of science interpreted for the layman by the world's greatest authorities.

That's what you buy for $16,000. That's what you get for ⅓ cent per family.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday Newspapers. In 558 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 70% of its circulation.

In each of 136 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 105 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 153 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 164 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,750,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

HEART-THROBS OF AGONY COLUMN RECALLED BY UNUSUAL AD

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THERE ARE TIMES, when I see an especially clever personal advertisement, that I wish we encouraged that sort of thing more by the institution of the Agony Column, as it exists in English paperes. You remember, the Agony Column that Sherlock Holmes always read with his after-breakfast pipe, the pipe loaded with the dottels of yesterday's pipes. Earl Derr Biggers, whose Charley Chan stands on his own feet as a detective, once wrote a whole story round the Agony Column.

PROF. ROGERS

But I suppose that if an enterprising American paper instituted one—and it could be done only by a long process of printing fake notices for bait—the public safety departments would probably intervene. It is more than likely that the column would become merely the private postoffice of the racketeering and kidnaping industries, instead of being filled, as [illegible] heart-throbs from deserted wives, parted [illegible] great aunts.

The Man Too Clever for College

[illegible] deep-rooted Amer[illegible] In fact, as he told a reporter, [illegible] So he became a concert tenor [illegible] He realizes that the men who did go to [illegible] opportunities are probably unpre[illegible] a front.

[illegible] Once he was employed by a [illegible] president. He had his own office [illegible] behind the scenes the real boss [illegible] work. He adds: "I simply [illegible] whose executive does not care to [illegible] rather have someone else do the hand[illegible] It might even be a company run by a [illegible] to handle the concern but needs a [illegible] prestige to put her over."

[illegible] contains a double sting. It is possible [illegible] business in which it is absolutely neces[illegible] be anonymous, who needs somebody to [illegible] And it will be interesting to see if [illegible] that many a successful business [illegible] her office "prestige." I can't [illegible] National Woman's Party letting that go by without [illegible]

I shouldn't be surprised to see the idea catch on. It has always [illegible] of course, but until now no one has [illegible] and said out loud what everybody [illegible] Advertising agencies, the classy kind that call themselves [illegible] in Personnel Engineering or something of the sort, will be playing up "Fronts for Big Shots" or "Stuffed Shirts for Shirtsleeve Executives."

Lawyers Their Own Front

Lawyers won't need them. The trial lawyer has always been the "front" of a law firm. But there is many a physician who realizes that although he is a good diagnostician he makes no hit with the ladies. What he needs is a "front" with a good bedside manner, preferably another physician who is a dud but can get away with it. It is the rare politician who can be his own "front". That is why so many of the best stay in retirement and pull the strings for their candidates. Col. House obviously needed the eloquent Mr. Wilson to express his shrewd ideas. And the retiring Mr. Hoover probably feels better when he is being represented by the handsome and magnetic Mr. Pat Hurley or the forcible and imperative Mr. Ogden Mills. Theodore Roosevelt needed no front. He was his own front, back, sides and both fists.

Will anyone dare to hire the candid New York gentleman? He has just enough brains, he says, to keep his mouth shut and his ears open and to present a good executive appearance. He seems to think that is all that is necessary for most business careers. Perhaps that is what was the matter with American business in the golden age before 1929. It is not impossible that some notable executive, in a sudden flush of shameful self-realization, will decide to keep his job as "front," in which he is experienced and successful, and hire the cheeky advertiser, obviously so much cleverer than he, to be the real big boss in the back office. Stranger things have happened!

WAR HERO GETS PERMISSION TO RETURN

Sick Veteran Going to Canada for Treatment; Lexington Aids Wife

Charles Andrew Stevens, 42, of Morris st., North Lexington, Canadian war veteran whose weekly welfare payment of $6 was stopped by Lexington officials because of alleged refusal to return to Canada, has consented to cross the border and his wife will be aided by the town of Lexington.

This announcement was made by Chairman Robert P. Trask of the board of selectmen after a conference with an official of Boston Post, Canadian Legion.

Stevens, twice mentioned in despatches for bravery in action, will go into a Canadian hospital and be treated for tuberculosis growing out of his war service, the Canadian Legion official said.

PERMISSION TO RETURN

While Stevens is gone, according to Trask, the veteran's wife will receive regular aid from the town welfare department and Stevens when improved will be allowed to return.

Final arrangements will be made tomorrow night when Mr. and Mrs. Stevens are invited to appear at a meeting of the selectmen.

Although the $6 cash the couple have been receiving weekly has been cut off temporarily, the town is continuing to furnish groceries and provisions to the couple, Chairman Trask explained.

Stevens has been trying for years to get compensation from the Canadian government as a wounded and gassed veteran. Both he and his wife are unable to work.

FORCED TO QUIT WORK

Six months ago, when Stevens was forced to give up his job with the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway Co. because of illness, the payments to the Waltham bank which held a mortgage on his house stopped. Foreclosure proceedings were started and the eviction order upheld by the court Saturday.

Chairman Trask explained today that Stevens was really under state aid because he hadn't established a legal five-year settlement in any one place.

HARVARD HUBBY MISSING

Virginia Franck, who eloped with Theodore Rousseau, Jr., Harvard student, last June, is wondering today whether her Harvard hubby is coming back to her or is going to remain in Paris with his dad. Rousseau, according to his bride, left her three days after their runaway wedding on a journey to Paris to placate his father, who failed to greet the news of his son's wedding with any amount of enthusiasm. Virginia is still waiting on this side of the water while her hubby well—he is still in Paris.

YOUNG RIDER IN PERIL DURING WILD RIDE

Policeman Leaps From Motorcycle to Bring Frightened Animal to Halt

A 10-year-old Weston boy is alive and uninjured today only because of the daring act of a policeman who risked his own life to stop a frightened horse, which ran a mile and a half along the bridle path, between Nahant and Lynn, with the boy on his back.

The boy was Peter Billings, son of Kenneth S. Billings of Church st., Weston, Readville manufacturer.

The horse bolted suddenly while in Nahant and went out of the boy's control, although young Peter succeeded in maintaining his place on the saddle.

WOMAN STRUCK

Mrs. John A. Ritter of Washington st., Lynn, was the first victim of the galloping animal. She was knocked down and received injuries to the elbow, back and shoulder. A physician treated her and she was able to go to her home.

Farther along, David Earl Wilson, 8, of Clyde st., Malden, ran afoul of the spirited animal. He was knocked unconscious. He was taken to Lynn Hospital, but his condition was declared last night as not serious.

The sensational end of the dash came after the horse passed over the Lynn line from Nahant. Motorcycle Officer Harold Boudreau of the Metropolitan police saw the animal when he was about 200 yards from him. He made for the horse, driving his cycle over a steep embankment which separated the road from the bridle path.

HORSE IS STOPPED

The sharp ascent nearly toppled Boudreau from his machine, but after careening for a moment he succeeded in righting his cycle and drew alongside the horse.

Then turning the handle bars sharply toward the left away from the horse he leaped from the seat grasping the reins and halting the frightened animal.

The motorcycle rolled over the embankment and came to a halt without causing any further trouble.

The dash ended just before the end of the bridle path and had the chase gone further the trail would have led into the heavy traffic lanes of the main highway.

GILLETTE FEES BATTLE OPENS

Before Judge William M. Prest as master, hearings opened today in probate court to determine how much in fees and expenses shall be paid to plaintiff counsel in the $21,000,000 suit brought by minority stockholders of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., against certain directors of the concern.

The suit was settled out of court last week for $400,000 and "various concessions," following many months of intermittent hearings.

Judge Fred T. Field of supreme court, after assenting to the agreement, allowed a petition to submit the matter of plaintiff counsel fees and expenses to Judge Prest.

Today's hearing was private in the judge's lobby.

Dancer Waits in Vain for Her Missing Harvard Husband

Some things colleges don't teach include a hard and fast method of pacifying Daddy after your elopement with a pretty dancer in the chorus. Virginia Franck, who should know, revealed today in New York.

Last June pretty Virginia, a dancer in "Of Thee I Sing," eloped with Theodore Rousseau, Jr., who had just completed his junior year at Harvard, and three days later he sailed for Paris to pacify his father.

STILL MISSING

She hasn't seen him since.

Virginia declared today that now she does not know whether her bridegroom will return to America and complete his college course or will be pinned down to a job in Paris, necessitating her going overseas to join him.

The couple eloped to Media, Pa., after Rousseau had hastened from Cambridge to New York, being so impatient that he made the trip by taxicab.

The union was greeted with no enthusiasm by the elder Rousseau, a wealthy architect who lives in Paris and who is president of the American Club there.

WELL ENTERTAINED

Young Rousseau sailed three days later, on June 20, to square things with his parents, and then hurry back to the bride, but her only consolation since then has been a daily letter or cablegram from him.

Meanwhile it is reported that she is being squired in New York, in between her show time, her swimming excursions and her aviation lessons, by her husband's best friend, a classmate at Harvard.

Purse Thief Robs Roxbury Woman

Mrs. Lucy Lunderville, of 105 Stone st., Roxbury, reported to police today that while walking near 59 Washington st., Dorchester, a man grabbed her handbag and got away. The bag contained rings worth $40 and $3 in cash.

GOLDBERG SITS AS NEW JUDGE

Before a throng that jammed the equity motions session of superior court, Judge Lewis Goldberg, who was affirmed last week by the Governor's Council, was inducted today as judge of superior court.

With him on the bench as his commission was read by Clerk of Court D. Pulsifer Colbill, were Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall of superior court and Judge Frederick J. Macleod.

After the reading of the commission, 15 basket-bouquets of gladioli were delivered to the new superior court judge from friends.

The brief session in the courtroom was followed by an informal reception held in the judge's lobby, with Judge Goldberg's wife, Mrs. Mildred L. Goldberg, and their 10-year-old daughter, Hannah Fay Goldberg, assisting with Chief Justice Hall.

VALENTINE -:- An Exciting Story of Modern Love -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val, Dreamy Child of Young and Beautiful Mother, Is Eager to Find Love

Though they started alone, they usually came back with a gentleman. Millie always seemed to meet a friend.

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Famous Authors of "Embers of Love" and Many Other Intensely Human Novels of Romance and Society Life.

EVEN THE NEIGHBORS who wouldn't let their children play with her admitted that Val Macfarlane was a nice little thing. And pretty, too, with those big, dark-fringed eyes and that marvelously delicate, satin-smooth skin. Still, there are limits.

"DOROTHY! Dor-o-thy!"

"What?"

"I want you. You come right home."

"Oh, mom! Val was just telling us a story!"

"Never mind. You come right home. I want you!"

So the Dorothys and Jeans and Maries of the neighborhood were wont to leave sullenly and reluctantly, and the little Macfarlane girl would be left to look after them longingly.

But she never protested, and she never called them back. The story, an amazing and highly romantic tale of a beautiful young girl who was in some mysterious way related to herself, continued with or without the audience. Val had been telling this story to herself ever since she could remember. Its heroine, who was sometimes herself and sometimes someone quite different, was more real to her than any of the children who listened, open-mouthed, to the telling.

She liked the audience but it wasn't necessary. She never asked for it. It was always the other children who sought her out, lured not only by the entertainment, but by a certain easy hospitality that exuded from the Macfarlane's menage, along with the strains of dance music from Mrs. Macfarlane's phonograph, and the faint, heady perfume that drifted out of her half open door and was swallowed up swiftly in the dim, musty hall.

The landlady, who was really quite fond of Val and her mother on account of never having to speak twice about the rent, though the other roomers were unnecessarily fussy.

"This is a respectable house, and I wouldn't have anybody the least—that is—you know what I mean. I mean, if I knew it. Because, I always say, you can't judge by appearances. Mrs. Macfarlane might have a good many gentlemen visiting, but in a housekeeping room, it isn't as if it was a bedroom, if you know what I mean. She talks real refined, and she certainly brings up that young one nice. I declare it's a shame she never has any playmates!"

"Oh, children soon forget," the mothers of the Dorothys and Jeans and Maries said.

DREAMY CHILD

But Val Macfarlane never forgot. She noticed everything, and remembered everything, long after she and her mother had left the shabby rooming house forever, and gone their separate, checkered ways.

And in spite of the misgivings of the garrulous and good hearted landlady, she wasn't unhappy, and she wasn't lonely. She was a dreamy, imaginative child, and she floated all those first years of her life in a soap-bubble world of romance. Romance of Millie's making.

Millie, the mother, was only a girl herself then. A fragrant, full-blown rose of a girl, with red cheeks and lips made redder out of a box. With a song in her heart, and a laugh on her lips . . . the perfect playmate. Not in the least like other little girls' mothers.

LOVELY MILLIE

Other little girls' mothers were nice enough in their way, though peculiar about not wanting you to play in their rooms. But they were grown up and uninteresting.

Millie was not like that. She was young and lovely, and she talked to you just as though you were as grown up as she, and let you try on her dresses, and experiment with the sweet smelling stuff in the boxes and jars, and she told you all about sweethearts, and what fun it was to be in love.

"How old will I be before I'm in love."

Millie always laughed at that. Her rich, throaty laugh, that bubbled out of her, as if from some well of secret happiness, way down deep inside.

"Not very old, if you're like your mother!"

Millie had married young. "I was only a little girl myself when I had you, and was left a widow," she told Val, over and over.

LOOKING AHEAD

That was one of Val's favorite stories, and she privately resolved to have a little baby herself while she was still a little girl. And be a widow and wear long, floating black veils with little white ruchings, and later, black and white. And then soft lilacs, and lavenders, and purples—very trying to the complexion, but Millie of the roses and snow didn't have to mind.

"Will I look pretty in purple when I'm a lady?"

"Oh, yes, darling. You'll be awfully pretty—I'm sure of it."

"Like you, Millie?"

"No, not me. More—I don't know—more aristocratic. But you'll be pretty. Your freckles will all go away and you'll find out, and . . . hold still . . . there's a speck of soot . . ."

Millie had a way of wetting the corner of a scented handkerchief

CONNOR HIRES LAWYER TO HELP OUT

Cambridge's Latest Political Star Plans Ride to Station on Hokey-Pokey Wagon

Edmund J. [illegible] Connor, Sr., ex-street cleaner and would-be political czar, today took his first official step in his fight to regain his job as sweeper of the highways and byways bordering Inman sq, Cambridge.

Returning from a week-end of seclusion, C[illegible] announced that Patrick J. De[illegible], former Cambridge city [illegible], has been retained as his [illegible] in his battle to retain his implements of trade and the official position that goes with them.

WILL FIGHT TO FINISH

Delaney corroborated the announcement.

"I have already familiarized myself with the case," Delaney said. "An examination of the facts reveals that the question might well be in Mr. Connor's favor.

"It is my intention to carry this case to the Supreme Court, if necessary."

In the meantime Connor today reported for work as usual at Cambridge City Hall. He left as usual without securing it.

"Anyway," he said on departing, "they can't say that I didn't show up for work and when they've got to give me back pay they can't squawk."

Connor followed his routine of returning to his Hampshire st home and engaging in some chore. Today he was busily engaged in chopping the winter's supply of wood.

"Well, now that I've got the plans for getting my job back underway I can pay plenty of attention to my campaign for the office of Representative from this district," he said as he smashed a wooden crate.

INVITED TO BOSTON RALLY

"The Democratic State Committee wants me to speak over in Faneuil Hall, tonight, but I don't think that I can make it, I've got so many other things to do. Joe Maynard, himself, dropped me a line and asked me to be sure to be there. I'd like to help Joe out but the people who vote in my district don't come from Faneuil Hall.

"Some women's voting league here in Cambridge sent me a paper filled with a lot of questions to answer. I didn't even open the letter when it came in but sent it right back. I saw by the top of the envelope who it was from but I'm answering questions to the voters down here in East Cambridge, not to a crowd of high pressure blue-bloods from around Brattle st." Brattle st."

"Yes, sir, down here in East Cambridge, a Connor speaks to a Casey and the Casey's speak to God," he continued, as he started in on another crate.

"I haven't been able to get around my entire district so much lately, but tomorrow night I'm going to give the folks a chance to see me in person. I'll be on the stage at the Inmann Square Theater and they can all come around. I'll be glad to see them.

"My first rally isn't so far away and, boy, when I start, then there'll be something doing. Why I'll ride right down Beacon Hill into the State House on my little hokey-pokey cart.

"Folks are starting to sit up and take notice of Edmund J. Connor, Sr. I've got a lot of mail from admirers lately, all promising me plenty of support. The only support I need is a cross against my name on election day.

"All I want is a good clean campaign. I'm not forgetting those threats I got and those guys who tried to kidnap me. I expect to get around to see Chief of Police John J. McBride some time today and to ask him for a bodyguard. Anyhow, they're not going to scare me."

CHOPS TO PASS TIME

Edmund J. "Push-'em-up" Connor, Sr., Cambridge ex-street cleaner, who has turned politician in an effort to get his job back, was busy preparing a supply of wood for the winter when the cameraman paid him a visit. He had just returned from his daily call at City Hall. (Staff Photo.)

TANK PROJECT IN CAMBRIDGE BANNED

Fire Marshal Rules Oil Storage on Broadway Site Would Constitute Menace

The appeal of the Baker Supply Co. from the action of the Cambridge Board of License Commissioners in granting a license to the Norris-Hillis Oils Co., Inc., for garages and oil tanks at 149 Broadway, that city, was upheld in a decision made public today by State Fire Marshal James M. Hurley, on the ground that the project would constitute an explosion and fire hazard.

The license granted by the Cambridge board would have allowed the Norris-Hillis company to maintain two garages of the second class, one for five cars, and one for two cars, and to keep, store and sell 900,000 gallons of petroleum products in tanks above ground, and 6000 gallons in tanks underground.

OPPOSED AT HEARING

Bitter opposition against the project was voiced at public hearings conducted by the marshal at the State House when the appeal was heard several months ago.

In his decision the Marshal said in part:

"The evidence showed this license was to be exercised on a lot of land containing approximately 30,000 square feet; that six tanks were to be erected above ground, four with capacity of 4000 barrels each and the other two tanks with a capacity of 20,000 gallons each, and three tanks were to be located underground, with a capacity 2000 gallons each.

IN INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT

"The truck loading rack was to be located approximately 18 feet from the Baker Supply Company factory while the pump house was to be located about 40 feet from said factory.

"After considering all of the evidence, the amount of storage to be placed on a lot of this size, and considering the location of this lot in the heart of an industrial center, the said Board of License Commissioners are hereby notified that in my opinion the exercise of this license would constitute a fire and explosion hazard."

DOLE FATHER IS HELD IN THEFT

Henry G. Tibbets, 38, of Russell rd., Somerville, father of two children and who is a $2.50-a-week welfare recipient in Somerville, was arrested today by Sergt. Edward J. Keating of Boston police headquarters, charged with larceny of $200 from Miss Jennie G. Sullivan of 29 Monadnock st., Dorchester.

The alleged larceny was perpetrated on April 4, 1931, at which time Tibbetts, out of a job for many months, was treasurer of the Parisien Perfume Shops, Inc., then in Bromfield st.

According to Miss Sullivan's charge, she was offered the post of assistant manager in the new firm if she would post $200 as bond and would buy 28 shares of stock in the company for $200 more—both of which she did.

The firm lasted three weeks, she said, at the end of which time it owed her salary which she has never collected, nor did she get her bond money back. When she agreed to go with the company she was told, she said, that it was backed by "Liggett, the druggist," and that it was capitalized at $1,000,000. Both fo these statements she found untrue, she declared.

Tibbetts admitted th einitial capital of the company was only $500, that Miss Sullivan's $200 bond and $200 for stock brought the capital up to $900, and that another $200 bond by another girl employe made the total capital $1100, police said.

6 BLACK KITTENS, WITH A BLACK MOTHER

HUGE TUNA FISH LANDED

A huge tuna fish that had wandered hundreds of miles from his customary haunts in the warm waters of the South, was harpooned off the Graves light yesterday by a Revere lobsterman. After a struggle which lasted four hours and almost resulted in the capsizing of the captor and his 35-foot motorboat the huge fish was landed.

Smith maneuvered his boat to within striking distance and then with careful aim hurled his harpoon and the iron struck close to the upper dorsal fin. Then the battle began.

The fish tugging at the double harpoon line tossed the craft around as if it were a dory. After three hours had elapsed the great fish showed signs of weakening and Smith succeeded in getting another line around his tail. Then towing the fish he started for shore.

On reaching Ocean Pier at Revere Beach the fish was still alive. He was hoisted from the water by means of a block and tackle.

Miss Sears a Bride

By DOROTHY WHIPPLE FRY

[illegible] was [illegible] of Miss Margaret [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] Pearson of New York [illegible] took place at the [illegible] on Friday and in spite of threatening weather a large [illegible] of charmingly dressed guests [illegible] South Shore colony gathered for the occasion.

The bride wore white satin and [illegible] the bodice of her gown being of lace with long sleeves of satin with inserts of lace. She wore a very becoming [illegible] with orange blossoms from which flowed a long [illegible] veil [illegible] than [illegible]. Her attendants were also in white crepe [illegible] with a [illegible] length that swept the ground and has the [illegible] waistline.

Wedding in White

The sleeves were shoulder length and made in white points that gave the effect of flower petals. The bridesmaids were Miss Perry Place of Boston and New York, Miss Barbara Taylor, Miss Barbara Scott and Miss Marjorie Welsh of New [illegible]. The bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley and white orchids. It was quite unique, having the whole wedding white and, it might be added, very effective.

After the reception the bridal party had dinner in a secluded little room while their guests partook of delicious refreshments and enjoyed dancing in the Tap-room. The whole affair was charmingly conducted and a large gathering saw the bride and bridegroom off for a three-weeks' cruise on the Oriente, sailing shortly thereafter.

Miss Vose a Guest

Among those present were Miss Carol Vose, in a charming gown of black and green with a very becoming green straw hat to match. The hat had a picture brim and was trimmed with black velvet. Miss Vose has just announced her engagement to Mr. Daniel Abercrombie, of New York and Boston.

Mrs. Joshua Nickerson, II, looked very chic in a brown ensemble with a collar of cream-colored lace that was most becoming. Her hat was brown straw with tiny flowers in the same shade, tucked coquettishly under the miniature brim. Mrs. Sears, the bride's mother, wore a claret-colored georgette coatee over a white and claret-georgette gown and a very stylish and becoming hat of the same shade straw.

Summer Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE MOST INTERESTING FEATURE of mid-summer fashion in and about town is the length of a coat that is being worn. There is the long fur-trimmed coat that suggests the coming of the fall style, and still the little short coatee persists with its saucy, suggestive lines, and then there is the reefer, one of the young girl's sport coat, "smart" [illegible] we might say, and also to fit milady's charming figure this midsummer season.

THE AMERICAN IDEAL OF feminine elegance has been a small graceful head posed on a long slender neck, narrow shoulders and a figure like a [illegible] the young boy's with extravagantly long limbs. Delicately arched feet encased in shoes of the long drawn-out last for which 5th ave. bootmakers are proverbially famous. Mrs. Elizabeth Loder of Brookline and Plymouth is one of this charming type with a slender figure and exquisitely poised little head covered with golden curls and she dresses beautifully. Have you noticed how chic the little lady looks in her green [illegible] that cut [illegible] at the [illegible] and all in all presents a very delightful figure.

On [illegible] and then of course charming Miss Mary Weldon. Without doubt you saw her at the play [illegible] given on the R[illegible] estate. She looked a [illegible] in her [illegible] white [illegible] gown with a [illegible] Kelly green velvet [illegible] combination [illegible] the white and vivid green. Her ruffled dress [illegible] and she carried a [illegible] the green and white bag to match her costume.

Miss Weldon is the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Samuel A. Weldon of Hamilton and New York and is one of those delightful young ladies who dress in vogue and who wear their frocks in a very delightful fashion. Of course one has to have that certain thing to wear clothes and look as charming as does Miss Mary Weldon.

Peculiar Stag Line

We hear that Mr. George Brown and his charming daughter, Mrs. Louise Brown Grant, gave a large and very delightful dinner at the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Then there is the altogether delightful Miss Ellen O'Donnell, who is one of the most attractive subdebs in Marblehead. She is also a skipper of parts and looks a picture in her ruffled green dress in her white duck sailing trousers with a little white beret just to keep those rebellious curls out of her eyes while she is skippering her craft. Oh, by the way, did you hear that Mr. Van Ness Bates appeared at one of the club dances at Marblehead in most remarkable dancing shoes, we won't describe them but they were a matter of amazement. AT LEAST they were comfortable! and at the same ball, may I ask who the hapless young lady was who accidently—at least I think it an accident—bumped into a certain young man in the stag line and as a consequence the whole stag line toppled over! Fancy that! like a lot of little wooden soldiers—and one is reminded of the little ditty "And it's oh dear! what can the matter be?" What could have ailed those little wooden soldiers?

Then there is Miss Mary Small, that charming young lady who is spending the summer at Cohasset. She was seen at the Cove show in a lovely little white silk sport frock with a very becoming little turquoise blue beret. She looked very delightful with her curly brown hair and her laughing brown eyes.

SHE REMINDS ONE OF A dainty flower, a narcissus on a graceful green stem, and she has a flowery face. It is charming to meet people with flowery faces. They always are so happy, and happiness is the nicest thing to cultivate. Now, isn't it? Then, there is Mrs. Lerita Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bartlett of Manchester and Boston. A most winesome young lady is she in turquoise blue satin evening gown that fits her slender figure charmingly and looks so smart with a salmon pink velvet evening wrap. Again that alluring combination of pink and blue which is not only so stylish by so very becoming. Miss Bartlett has short

Junior League Girl Weds

In a beautiful setting and w[illegible] M[illegible] Sylvia [illegible] Cleveland became the bride of Mr. Allen Leaming Weatherby on Saturday midday at the [illegible] Lindsey Memorial Chapel [illegible]

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas [illegible] of Harvard University, and the bride was given away by her cousin, Mr. Frank Warner.

A reception was held in the afternoon for the wedding party and relatives of the two families at the home of Mrs. D. Burton Cleveland, 512 Beacon st. Following the honeymoon the couple will join Mrs. Cleveland at her Beacon st. home during the winter months while Mr. Weatherby continues his studies at Harvard. They will be at home to their friends on and after September 1st.

The bride attended the Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and was elected to membership in the Junior League, following her presentation a year ago.

The bridegroom was graduated from the Noble and Greenough schools and is now a freshman at Harvard.

North Shore Leaders in Charge

A large luncheon and bridge party has been arranged for Friday, August 26th, at the Eastern Yacht Club. Guests will be received at 10:30 a. m. by members of the committee, of which Miss Edith G. Fabens, of Marblehead, is chairman.

The club, where the guests will have an opportunity of inspecting the fine collection of ship models and cups, has been kindly opened for the event, which has been planned as a benefit for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. It is found that the demands on the Society have increased so much that the funds on hand are not enough to carry on the work.

The lunch, for which there will be an interval during the play, will be served on the veranda overlooking the harbor.

Assisting Miss Fabens is Mrs. Albert B. Carter, the executive secretary of the society. Others assisting are widely distributed at different North Shore resorts with a view of gaining the interest of as wide a group as possible. They are Mrs. Robert E. Apthrop of Harbor View, Mrs. Clinton A. Ferguson of Devereux, Mrs. Albert R. Goodhue of Cliffs, Mrs. M. G. Shepard, Jr., of Marblehead Neck, assisted by Mrs. James M. Hunnewell, and Mrs. B. Devereux Barker at Peach's Point.

Mrs. Alvan T. Thompson, Mrs. Marquis Smith, Mrs. Myles Standish and Mrs. Arthur Swasey will sell the tickets for the tables. Miss Bertha Kidder is receiving subscriptions at Rock Mere where she is summering. Mrs. J. Foster Smith is interesting her Wenham neighbors and Miss Louise Young, with Mrs. George Towne is working at Danvers. Others are Mrs. George Hooper at Salem; Mrs. Benjamin A. G. Thorndike, at Nahant, and also Mrs. David Wheatland, Mrs. Duncan Dana and Mrs. Robert Cushing Terry who volunteered their help wherever needed.

Society Notes

MRS. E. M. HUBBARD OF Chicago has arrived at Hamilton on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Francis P. Sears of Boston and Hamilton.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY DUPONT are on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, at the latter's summer estate on Peaches Point, Marblehead.

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN L. CHICKERING, JR., of San Francisco, are receiving the congratulations of their many friends on the birth of a daughter, born on Aug. 15th. Mrs. Chickering was the former Carol Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Rogers, of Chestnut Hill, Boston.

Others visiting the garden were Mr. Richard Ward with Miss Mary Stone, who is on a visit to his sister, Miss Eleanor. Mrs. Charles F. Eaton of Brookline and Marblehead Neck, frequently attends with a group of her friends for the dancing on this novel floor, which is of concrete laid over sponges to give the necessary spring.

Mrs. Lyman B. G[illegible] of Waban and her family have recently joined her mother, Mrs. Malcolm E. French, at the Waumbek Hotel, Jefferson. They and others, including Mr. T. W. Bancroft of Brookline and Mr. W. W. Beal, of Waban, attended the annual costume ball held at the Waumbek, which was one of the chief events of the season in the colony.

Mrs. Rudy Vallee Awaiting Stork

JUST LIKE A WOMAN -:- Feminine Interests in the Day's News -:- By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

A Vital Issue---Cosmetics for Women; Even Taken on Record Air Trip

MEN SMILED, of course, when they read the other day that the aerial transfer of cosmetics was a feature of refueling the "Flying Boudoir" the plane in which Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden and Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsalis have just broken the women's endurance record.

USE OF ROUGE

The first inkling of this fact came [illegible] Beatrice W[illegible] [illegible] lamenting the [illegible] of cosmetics [illegible] She declared [illegible]

"The use of rouge, powder and lipsticks is characteristic of a decadent capitalist civilization, a barbaric fashion practiced by primitive races. The practice is grossly immoral. It's a shame that Soviet women should make themselves worse than the men."

Hardly were the words out of the mouth of this feminine [illegible] that Mme. Fa[illegible] of the Paris [illegible]

These three notes from the news sufficiently indicate the vital part which make-up plays in the life of the modern woman. Not that make-up is so unmitigatedly modern either. Perhaps you remember reading recently of how Professor T. Leslie Shear, Princeton archeologist, found in a woman's grave at Corinth white face powder which had been placed there about 450 B. C. and which was similar to the contents of the compact which powders my [illegible] nose today. The girls of ancient Greece also used a vivid carmine rouge obtained from herb roots.

QUEST FOR BEAUTY

It is forever old and forever new, the feminine quest for beauty and youth, and just as long as both are demanded by the eyes of men the case for cosmetics rests on that defense. Gentlemen, we [illegible] for you. If you really wonder why [illegible] use make-up read the answer in that amazing new [illegible] young man [illegible] his Lover," by Jack L[illegible] Says he captivating and candid Cressida:

"To charm a man you must make him think he's your superior. By making yourself up you delude him into the belief that you're trying to turn into something desirable for his benefit. Also you flatter him by making him think how useless and weak you are, with nothing better to do than sit at a mirror. That makes him feel important, and when he feels like that he's as helpless as a baby in a cradle . . . It is not lying. It is charm to deceive a man for his own good. How can he respect you otherwise?"

Safe, Sane Diet For Reducing

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

STEP RIGHT UP, ladies in search of the more slender silhouette. Here's your copy of the Safe and Sane Reducing Diet that I told you I discovered way up in the Green Mountain State — at Bellows Falls, to be accurate.

Isn't it the most painless and sensible diet ever? And I can vouch for its effectiveness, for the pounds just roll off as time rolls on. If you have a weakness for whipped cream and caramels, put some extra stiffening into your back bone, practice saying "No thank you," in firm tones, broadcast to your friends the glad tidings that you are trying [illegible] to divest yourself of [illegible] too, too solid flesh that Mr. Shakespeare mourned—and go to it.

DR. LISTON'S SAFE REDUCING DIET

BREAKFAST:

LUNCHEON, DINNER, SUPPER

You must not take more than one of the choices in each number. Of course, if you take something from each number for both dinner and luncheon it would probably be too much. The best plan is to take perhaps three or four of the seven courses for each meal. Fat should not be added in the cooking.

1.—O[illegible] or cocktail, as desired.

2.—Clear broth cooked without vegetables, cooled and all fat removed before serving, or use b[illegible] or cube.

3.—One moderate portion of lean meat or lean fish or egg or cheese.

4.—Fresh or canned vegetables except potatoes, [illegible] or baked beans. [illegible] vegetables, macaroni and rice are not included.

A curious sight. It set me thinking. I've heard lately that this man is beginning to slip, that people are beginning to find some strange flaws in his performance.

Daily True Story

Noxious Noises

DORIS HASTINGS—city-bred and perfectly satisfied with the confines of a few square blocks of paved streets and a park or two to walk through on summer days—was quite sure she wasn't going to like the country.

And if she hadn't been terribly in love with Phil Bradley—whose business unfortunately kept him in a small country town two-thirds of his time—she never would have considered going there to live.

But love Phil she did. And marry him she did also. And following a two weeks' honeymoon, he took up abode in a small country town of a [illegible] population. Phil rented a [illegible] little bungalow and felt quite certain that his bride's distaste for all things pertaining to the "sticks" would vanish once she became engrossed in wifely duties.

As if with a great effort Millie tore her long, impassioned gaze from the captain and looked … the little girl.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"I'll never forget the surprise I felt when I was coming there one night with my friend, George Sterling, during the war. I took the poet to my regular table, but old Pat came up to serve us, instead of young Mike.

"'Where's Mike?' I inquired. For I had told Sterling of him, and wanted him to know such a char-

In it he … that one longs to say about a poor young waiter who had quietly done his duty. It was said so beautifully, so honestly, so simply. He had captured the mood of all he felt at hearing such important news, with business going on as usual around him; and he had to get by himself and put it on paper before it left him—the only way to write a poem. It remains one of his best pieces of work. And mind

Blondie of the Follies

From Which M-G-M Had Made a Glamorous Picture Starring Marion Davies

BLONDIE NEVER KNEW how long she rode, her mind flashing back and forth over the past few months. She only knew by every bit of reasoning power that she was right in taking the step … She must go some place … to the theater.

NOT FEELING WELL

"What's happened to Blondie?"

"She'll be out in a few minutes," … as he reached for his glass of … on the piano. "Not feeling very well."

"No, I'll go," Pratt answered quickly.

"Blondie!" he called toward the bathroom.

BLONDIE HESITATED

Blondie hesitated just …

"Good evening, Miss McClune," … "Been warm today, hasn't it?"

"Some friends of mine went to the Follies last night and saw your specialty number. … They raved about it … did those intricate steps …"

They said there must be some trick to it," the waitress interrupted. "But I told 'em how well I knew you and how hard you worked."

RECOVERY MAKING REAL HEADWAY AT LAST

By B. C. FORBES

THIS IS NEWS New high prices for the year are becoming more common than new low prices for the year.

Cotton, our most important agricultural export, has reached the best price of the year. [illegible] week at the best price average since 1932 opened. Many stocks, too, are now at new peaks.

Worst Over at Midyear

Viewed in retrospect, it may prove that economic bottom was touched by the United States towards the end of the first half of this year. The general price level was lower in June than it has been since. Improvement in banking conditions set in before midyear and has become impressively pronounced during July and August. While stocks did not touch bottom until July 8, domestic bonds were [illegible] May and foreign bonds began recovering [illegible] weeks of June.

Bond Turnover Best Since 1928

The most significant and encouraging financial development is the [illegible] in bonds. Representative domestic issues have [illegible] an average of [illegible] per cent in [illegible] and a half [illegible]. Many second-grade issues have [illegible] per cent. Foreign bonds which [illegible] 1932 have climbed back [illegible].

Bond transactions on the New York Stock Exchange [illegible] have now passed the [illegible] mark, a turnover not equaled last year or the year before or even in 1929.

Beneficial Effect Widespread

It is not easy to exaggerate the importance, the reach, the influence of this transformation in bond values. It has strengthened practically every one of America's 20,000 banks, every insurance company, every building and loan association, every large investor, every individual and institution and organization interested in investments. The better market for bonds likewise has a beneficial effect on real estate, since it tends to make borrowing less impossible.

The [illegible] idea of [illegible] the bond recovery has been:

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Shields & Co.—A quiet market would be welcome for awhile. Commodities will give the major cue to price swings with the grain market watched most. Operations in wheat have been handicapped by the Canadian Conference, but more aggressive buying may be witnessed soon. There is no reason for abandoning trading policy of buying whenever the market quiets after setbacks.

E. A. Pierce—Advance in bonds has gone far enough and has lasted long enough, we think, to allow at least a tentative conclusion that the move is something more than a "technical" reaction from an over-deflated condition.

Clark, Childs & Keech—The market may go up from this level or there may be a substantial reaction prior to resumption of the advance. The latter is enough of a possibility and the immediate outlook sufficiently obscure to make it advisable to keep speculative commitments at a minimum for the time being.

E. B. Smith & Co.—On any minor weakness this morning we would be inclined to purchase active leading stocks for trading purposes.

Paine, Webber & Co.—Railroad stocks constitute the key to the present market. If this group again surges forward, it should be accepted as a buying signal for the entire list. The potential profits of leading railroads under conditions of increasing traffic are exceedingly large. A gain even as small as 20 per cent in gross would add tremendously to share earnings of roads like Atchison.

Chase Opens New Paris Branch Bank

New York, Aug 22—The uptown branch of the Chase Bank in Paris will be formally opened today in new quarters at 29 Avenue George V. This location is only a few steps from the Champs Elysees and is readily accessible to the uptown residential and hotel district of Paris. In addition to providing regular banking services, the new branch contains a travel bureau of the American Express Co.

General Tire Has Sales at New Top

Unit sales of the General Tire & Rubber Co. for the first six months of 1932 were greater than for any similar period in the history of the company, W. O'Neil, president of the company announced today. Up to July 1 the company made and sold 17.6 per cent more tires than during the same period in 1931, which was the previous high record according to the company.

Washington, Aug 22—Despite unfavorable conditions, tonnage of the American Merchant Marine decreased less than one-half of 1 per cent during the past fiscal year.

COTTON IS USED FOR BEARINGS IN MACHINERY

By FRANK H. MELOON

Campaign to extend the use of cotton participated in by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers with headquarters in the Boston Chamber of Commerce Building has had many odd results. One of these is the adaptation of cotton to bearings for machinery [illegible] at high speed, according to announcement made today.

The idea prevails in many quarters that a tariff is imposed upon nearly everything entering the United States. From the office of Collector W. W. Lufkin of the Port of Boston I have figures which indicate that [illegible] week [illegible] August 13 Collector Lufkin reports thus on imports for consumption:

The totals quoted were divided as follows: Merchandise free of duty, including certain raw materials and tea, woodpulp, glue stock, etc., $312,061. Merchandise subject to duty, $311,225. Merchandise withdrawn from warehouse for consumption, $220,028. Total, $843,313.

At their lows of July, industrials were selling at the lowest levels since 1897. The railroad stocks were lower than at any time in the 35-year record of the averages. The subsequent rise brought the [illegible].

That just as long as the leader issues keep in the background during the backing and filling movement the role of spectator is advisable. Activity in the next few days is likely to center in the secondary shares. If such is the case it must be admitted that the sponsorship is not of the first magnitude.

Wheat Overemphasized

The inability of wheat to get anywhere on the upside last week probably accounted for a good deal of the uncertainty visible on the stock tape. It is unfortunate that wheat plays such an important part in the considerations of the financial mind.

[illegible] These [illegible] organized markets, easily reported in the press, have been doing quite well would make better companions for share prices.

While the gains or losses of wheat prices make a pronounced impression on the public mind it is likely the stock market will be weaned away from this idea during the coming week. It is quite probable that the excellent action of the bond department will be emphasized.

BOND MARKET AGAIN RISES

New York, Aug 22—The bond market started its seventh consecutive week of advancing prices today with the railroad obligations again showing the way into new high territory for the movement, and in some instances for the year.

The Baltimore & Ohio obligations were again the prime favorites. The 4½s, due in March of next year advanced to a new high at 74½, the 6 per cent issue reached a new top at 65 on top of a sharp gain last week.

Hudson & Manhattan adjustment 5s gained about 1¼ points, reaching a new high for the year and up more than 30 points from their low touched June last.

Other issues to show fair sized gains were the obligations of the Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central and several others.

United States government obligations showed little change. In the first half hour of trading only three issues of Liberty bonds were traded in. The Liberty 3½s sold down slightly at 100.1, the first 4¼s were steady at 101.13, and the fourth 4¼s were unchanged at 103.

Foreign government issues were steady and moderately active with the German International 5½s holding unchanged at 45[illegible].

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

LACKING new stimulants, the stock market continues to plough through adjustments of its own internal structure. More than anything else, action has demonstrated the reduction in the short account. For a really satisfactory ground work an active bear interest is always advisable. Fears of bear raiding must be discounted if the market has a genuine foundation in more than artificial sponsorship.

Bond Market Gives Better Performance

While commodities have disappointed of late—even though some products have made further headway—the bond market provides the most satisfactory performance. Now that stocks have struck a snag, the continued strength of bonds must be maintained in order to stimulate new confidence in stocks.

Stockholder Growth Is Half-Year Up

The stockholders of leading American corporations continue to increase during first half of this year, exceeding the pace set in 1931 and nearly equalling growth in 1930, when public buying of stocks, after the 1929 break, was at its greatest volume. Fourteen important companies report an increase of 235,848 stockholders in first six months of 1932, compared with an increase of 439,466 for whole of 1931 and a gain of 578,844 for 1930. Percentage increase from end of 1929 to middle of this year was 61.52 per cent.

Associated Gas Has Good Gain in Holders

Of the total number of security holders, 116,682 are customers in areas served by the Associated System [illegible] crease of 11,847.

Stores of Soft Coal Are Lower

Decline in soft coal stocks in the hands of commercial consumers and retailers to 26,300,000 tons on July 1, a drop of 12.6 per cent from a year previous, was helpful [illegible] great as the decline in rate of consumption. Present reserves in terms of days supply are greater than on the like date a year ago. At the average daily consumption prevailing in May and June 1932 stocks on July 1 were sufficient to last 41 days against 33 days on the [illegible].

loan of $31,625,000 to the Baltimore & Ohio from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to finance paying off half the bonds in cash, the road is to issue refunding and general mortgage bonds for the other half.

Baltimore & Ohio's issue does not fall due until early next year, but an offer to bondholders probably will be made late this year. The other major railroad maturity which is ahead is that of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis, which has $20,000,000 of unsecured notes falling due on Oct. 1. It seems highly probable that the Nickel Plate will follow the lead set by other carriers and make an offer to bondholders seeking funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to pay off part of the maturity in cash.

Fifty Representative Stocks Sell Higher

The market value of 50 representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the week ended August 20 was $9,558,496,339, an increase of $783,319,275 or 8.93 per cent, as compared with the market value of $8,775,064 at the close of the preceding week according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same 50 stocks had a market value of $17,626,368,443, indicating a decrease of [illegible] $8,067,872,104 [illegible].

DEFENDS RISE FOR STOCKS

Reviving confidence inspired by rising security prices may suffer a serious relapse unless further recovery moves more slowly, Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men warned in the official bulletin of the organization issued last night.

The danger at present lies not in the extent of the recovery in prices but in the speed with which the recovery is effected, he contended, adding:

"Fundamental business conditions would not warrant the recent recovery had stock prices at their low levels reflected capital investments."

So rapid a rise was only possible because deflated prices did not begin to reflect the investment in industry, in his opinion, and because the deflationary process was so extreme and unreasonable that stocks in a great many instances were selling at less than their quick current asset value.

Depressed prices of certain stocks he believed would only have been justified under an assumption that management in control of the business would dissipate the capital of the companies represented by the stocks.

Youngstown Area Operations Slump

Youngstown, Aug. 22—Operations of steel mills in this district at the beginning of this week will be at 10 per cent of capacity, off 3 per cent from last week's average.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.'s operations, measured by ingot output, will decline to 8 per cent of capacity this week, against 12 per cent last week and 30 per cent in the like week of 1931.

London, Aug 22 (AP)—Bar silver steady, unchanged at 17 15-16d.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The market enter a new week with a period of correction behind it. Stocks in general did little last week, and idleness following their spectacular upturn is a pleasing development to many who have been apprehensive about the way the list was being whirled up.

Stimulation Ahead

In the meantime bonds have come forward with a rush, a helpful factor. With the Hoover business conference scheduled for the end of the week, there is some stimulation ahead.

Commodities have struck a sour note all week, especially wheat. There is a strong belief, however, that the corrective movement in staple prices is nearing an end.

BRAZIL REVOLT HELPS COFFEE TO ADVANCE

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—The coffee pot has been warm, if not boiling, recently.

The reason is a revolution in Brazil which has closed the world's most important coffee port of Sao Paulo and shut off a large supply of coffee beans which usually come to this country in large shipments.

Since the Brazilian revolt started a few weeks ago, the price of raw bean coffee here has advanced to around 12 cents a pound against a quotation of 9⅝ cents August 1. Coffee futures have also soared.

Statistics of the New York coffee and sugar exchange show the United States consumes in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 bags of raw coffee beans annually and more than half this total comes from Brazil.

Extent of the coffee havoc wrought by the Brazilian upheaval is shown by the fact that Brazilian stocks in the United States now aggregate only some 312,000 bags—of 132 pounds each—compared with 1,176,000 bags at this time time in 1931.

This week, in addition to the Brazilian coffee, there were on hand about 350,000 bags of "mild" beans obtained from Colombia, East Indies and other countries. Stocks of mild afloat, as it is termed—not in warehouses—consisted of some 128,000 bags against 340,000 bags a year ago.

STOCKS HIGHER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Aug. 22—Pivotal shares started the new week with a resumption of the advance on the New York Stock Exchange today. Piling up of buying orders over the week-end resulted in quick advances of a point or two for numerous stocks.

Strength in the bond market was a helpful factor, with grains and cotton futures ruling steady.

BULLS ENCOURAGED

Small pressure of selling which developed last week was evidently encouraging to the constructive forces. Issues showing maximum gains of 2 or more points included General Motors, pfd., Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Auburn, Eastman Kodak and American Tobacco B.

Point or more gains showed at the same time for such issues as U. S. Steel, New Haven, American Can, New York Central, Consolidated Gas of New York, du Pont, Southern Pacific, General Foods, International Harvester and Boston & Maine.

Grain prices in Chicago showed a little strength at the start today. Signing of the imperial conference report at Ottawa Saturday, which will impose a 6 cent duty on all wheat shipped into Great Britain with Empire wheat exempted, had practically no effect on early trading.

Wheat started steady to ¼ cent higher and held fractionally above Saturday's finish. Corn was ¼ cent lower to ¼ higher, but later firmed a little.

BUYING MARKETS ACTIVE.

Steel and heavier industries continue to lag, but in wholesale markets for consumers' goods such as wearing apparel and household furnishings there is a marked stirring of activity. Number of buyers in the principal wholesale centers during the past week was reported as largest of the season to date, and larger than a year ago.

Textile mills and several other manufacturers of lighter lines of merchandise continue to quicken their activities in various parts of the country.

Makers of ready-to-wear clothing, shoes, hardware, tools, novelty jewelry, rubber and food products are among the various lines reporting increased production, or better sales. In the textile markets, firmer prices for cotton goods, woolens and silks are reported.

The principal investment services in their weekly advises, however, displayed considerable disagreement as to the importance of these more encouraging aspects of the general situation.

President Woodin of American Car & Foundry Co. says there is broad feeling of confidence and optimism prevailing as a foundation for return of prosperity.

OIL COMMITTEE IS ATTACKED

In a statement issued today, Charles S. Jones, vice-president of Rio Grande Oil Company said:

"The members of the self-styled 'stockholders committee' who are soliciting funds to oppose acceptance of the offer of Consolidated Oil Corporation to purchase the assets of the Rio Grande Oil Company hold of record approximately 17,500 shares, or less than 1½ of the stock of the company.

"It is of course their privilege to oppose the offer but they are assuming a serious responsibility in attempting to enlist support of other stockholders for their position by the fallacious reasoning with which their circular letter is filled.

"More than that, the circular contains statements about which it would have been very easy for the members of the committee to have obtained accurate information if they had but made inquiry of the officers of the company.

"Before this committee appointed itself, some of its members who indicated that they would oppose the transaction were invited to come to the offices of the company to discuss it, but they declined to do so. For example, the circular refers to a contract which this company, jointly with the Barnsdall Co., had with the Southern Counties Gas Co. for the sale of dry gas from Elwood field, and states 'we are unable to determine whether or not it was taken into consideration in determining the value of the company's assets.'

"If the members of the committee had really wanted to know they would have made inquiry and found that the operation of the contract has long since been suspended for the reason that the amount of dry gas in the Elwood field became so depleted that not only did the company have none to sell, but was required to purchase for its own requirements."

Return Unexpected on Summer Branches

Many of the summer branch offices of New York Stock Exchange firms opened this year with scant hopes that they would pay their way, but with the great increase in stock market activity since mid-July, not a few of them have turned in enough business to pay considerably more than their running expenses for the entire season, according to gossip in brokerage circles.

Bond Pool Opened to Public Is Planned

New York, Aug. 22—Formation of a bond pool in which leading investment houses will participate and whose holdings are expected to reach millions of dollars, was announced today by Hoagland, Allum & Tunney, Inc., a leading Wall Street investment house.

Unlike the recent private bond pool formed by bankers, this undertaking will be open to public subscription and thus permit investors to profit from the return of bonds to higher levels. It will operate for a maximum of five years, and will set up an investing structure without parallel in the history of American finance. All previous bond pools have been carried out by groups of private investors and have been closed to the public.

Pointing out that bond issues of many leading organizations have been caught in the maelstrom of the current economic cycle and have been depressed far below their actual value, the announcement states that general business optimism is returning and that the up-swing is already apparent in many fields. Bonds, being first mortgages on the business organizations of the country, will naturally react to any improvement in business activity.

Because of the extraordinary conditions prevailing in our economic structure at the present time, says the announcement, an unusual opportunity presents itself in the bond market. Certain banks realized this and recently formed their gigantic $100,000,000 bond pool. It is planned, with the cooperation of several investment houses, to make this same principle of finance available to the general public by forming a bond pool in which even the small investor can participate.

The pool will be adminstered by a committee that will include representatives of each investment house interested in the pool, the announcement continues. All purchases will be controlled by vote of a majority of the representatives. Each subscriber will receive his original investment back plus six per cent cumulative interest before any fees or profits shall be paid from the pool. Upon the dissolution of the pool the subscribers will participate in the surplus profits.

DRUG COVERS DIVIDENDS

Drug, Inc. reports for six months ended June 30, 1932, net profit after all charges of $7,680,697, equal to $2.19 per share on the 3,501,490 shares of stock outstanding. This compares with net in the first half of 1931 of $10,652,510, equal to $3.04 per share, and with net in first half of 1930 of $10,542,007 or $3.01 per share.

For quarter ended June 30, 1932, net profit was 3,119,124 after charges and taxes, equal to 89 cents a share, comparing with $4,561,573 or $1.30 a share in preceding quarter and $5,268,364 or $1.50 a share in June quarter of 1931.

"It is significant that earnings for the first six months of 1932 have covered the dividend requirements by a substantial margin. The stability of the company has been indicated by the continuation throughout the depression period of the regular quarterly dividend of $1 per share. Possibly one of the most important factors accounting for this favorable condition in addition to the character of the products has been the corporation's policy of maintaining a consistent expenditure in national advertising for its products. We are convinced that advertising has been of great importance in maintaining a satisfactory sales volume," says Treasurer W. C. Watt.

On June 30, 1932, current assets totaled $58,830,145, including cash of $14,637,704 and marketable securities of $11,842,359 (of which approximately $9,000,000 was in United States government securities, municipal bonds, call loans and certificates of deposit). Current liabilities were $8,350,523, making net working capital $50,479,622.

'Managed Recovery' Move Goes Ahead

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Aug. 22—Taking advantage of the widespread psychological improvement, management in the large, after lying down for a long period, has again began to function.

A new phase of a gigantic experiment in pitting human determination and intelligence against the chaotic forces of blind nature has been reached. The creation of the $50,000,000 Commodities Finance Corp. is the latest move in a co-ordinated effort to stage a "managed recovery."

The new corporation is an improved impliment for getting the excess reserve funds of the great New York banks, which have been unproductive, out into the provinces where presumably credit facilities are less ample. It is a gesture for extending the benefits of the reflationary campaign of the Federal Reserve System beyond the banks into the hands of ultimate users of credit.

This new instrument is a further result of the deliberations of the young committee of six bankers and six busines men, who have been operating in the New ork district, to find ways and means of making the enlarged credit supply available to those who need it. Apart from technicalities, it is obviously hoped that the new corporation will help to convince buyers and sellers that the bottom has been reached and passed in commodity prices.

As a back-stop for banks, the new corporation is doubtless intended to give country banks more confidence to lend on commodities at prevailing deflated levels. Another thought of the sponsors a that mills should be encouraged to stock up on raw materials.

If the campaign succeeds, surplus on hand will appear less ominous, because the rate of using them up will be quickened. In past recoveries, shortages have habitually been uncovered. Stocks on hand that seemed excessive while the panic psychology choked the channels of distribution son become less unwieldy as business men, with confidence returning, show a willingness to build up depleted stocks, and put in normal inventories.

Utility Plans Retirement of $2,700,000 Bonds

A plan, calculated to retire approximately $2,700,000 of the $4,777,500 principal amount outstanding of Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation 5 per cent Collateral Trust Gold Bonds, due November 1, 1948, and to permit the payment of interest on the remaining $2,077,500 November 1, is outlined in a letter sent today by the company to bondholders.

Intended to save bondholders' expenses incident to default, receivership, foreclosure and forced sale of pledged collateral, it is planned to sell part of the collateral, itemized in the letter, for $1,100,000. Proceeds of such sale will be applied to the purchase and cancellation of $2,700,000 principal amount of the bonds.

Holders of each $1000 principal amount of the cancelled bonds are to receive $400 in cash and two shares of stock of another corporation which will hold certain preferred stocks now pledged as security for these bonds. The letter points out that unless the plan is put into effect, it is not expected that the corporation will be in a position to meet the interest payment due November 1, 1932.

Bondholders are asked to deposit their bonds, with November 1, 1932 and subsequent coupons attached, with Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., New York, not later than September 10, 1932. Not more than $2,700,000 principal amount of bonds will be received for deposit under the agreement.

STEEL OUTPUT HOLDS STEADY

Cleveland, Aug. 22—With an advance of one point to 15-16 per cent of capacity production, the steel industry is more optimistic in the purchasing than in producing departments, the magazine Steel reports.

With the price of scrap rising and its current production limited, several large producers made sizeable purchases to accumulate it, and others are in the market to build up inventories, the magazine says, though consumers of steel still are placing only orders for their immediate demands.

With slight gains in production at Pittsburgh, Chicago and Youngstown, developments are predominantly favorable, with prospects that the one-point increase in production will be held this week.

Industry is watching Detroit where decisions to advance introduction of 1933 cars several months are pending, with many manufacturers convinced that retention of a large share of recent improvement in the stock market will stimulate a demand for new cars.

There is an undercurrent of hope for new railroad business following the application of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads for loans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and as a result much of the recent activity in pig iron has originated with foundries engaged in railroad supply work.

AN APPEAL TO REASON

Let us relax for a moment and see what lesson can be gained from the above picture. In the first place, it shows that the Eskimos are smarter than anyone suspected—they have perfected a machine to brush the teeth. But is it really smart? Is it wise? What has the machine done for these people? Go to the Far North. Look around you. Do you see any dentists? No. They've been driven out by the machine. No dentist is needed in a land where people annoy themselves with their own rotating drill. No dentist; no waiting rooms. No waiting rooms; no old magazines. No old magazines; no old jokes. No old jokes; no new jokes. No jokes; no laughter. No laughter; no need of gold teeth. No gold teeth, no romance. No romance; no—but why go on?

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Just to Bore You!

(During his vacation Mister Sobol imposes upon his admiring public by reprinting columns of his earlier days.)

This is one of those days. You know. You run the paper into your typewriter and mark it "B'way—Fri.," and then you tap off four or five "m's" like this, "mmmmm," and a few "x's" and stop. You stare at the walls. From under the electric fan the puttied features of the Indian chief glower down upon you. You treasure that plaque. It was sculptured by your father the day you were born—thirty-four years ago. He was nervous, and they didn't want him around the house, so he sneaked up to the attic, where he used to paint odd landscapes and fashion grotesque figures out of clay and putty. It took him seven hours to complete the head of this particular Indian, and when it was done he came down and heard you squalling. What he should have done, I suppose, was to have made a great fuss over you, but instead, they tell me, he grinned down at you for a few seconds, commented facetiously on your gargoylish, though youthful, pan and then asked your mother how did she like the Indian head he had just finished. He was only 19 then and didn't know any better; but your mother, who was 18, didn't forgive him for a month.

Over on the wall to the left of the chief Natalie stares at you soberly. It's a red and brown and purple crayon drawing by Paul Frehm, sketched when the young lady paid one of her rare visits to this office. With all due credit to Frehm, the portrait doesn't do the impertinent lass justice. The mouth is too large and the lips too full. There's a cast in one of her eyes and the hair is too dark. I'm speaking of the drawing, of course. Actually, Natalie, who is no great beauty, has a small, thin-lipped mouth, with just the suspicion of a sarcastic droop at the corners. Her eyes are her best feature—large and brown and wide apart, like her mother's, and roguish. Her hair is straight and blondish. Nevertheless, I like this portrait by Frehm, for he has caught that inquiring expression of hers. Natalie is the world's champion inquirer. Her speech is punctuated by question marks. Her favorite question is, "Daddy, can you spare a quarter?"

And still no ideas for a column. There should be a paragraph, I suppose, on the elderly woman and her gigolo who sat from midnight until 6 ayem in Texas Guinan's Argonaut Tuesday and watched the Argonaughty nudes with a bored expression. Her late husband, one of the country's great financial giants, left her something like 50 or 60 millions, and for a year she was heartbroken at the loss of him. Now she's trying to find some pleasure in life by spending some of his money on a lad 20 years her junior, but she does not seem to be very happy, and you can't help feeling sorry for the spectacle she makes of herself. Incidentally, it was while the blonde little Kathleen Richner was twisting through her scorchy bottle number that the Guinan girl turned to you and said, "If she makes that dance any hotter, they'll cancel my fire insurance." When you woke up Wednesday afternoon and read the papers you learned that a few hours later the club had gone up in flames.

Well, in spite of the fire, that's not a hot paragraph. Your eyes go back to the walls. You send the office boy down stairs to buy you a chocolate bar. Your pet cockroach crawls slowly toward the picture pasted on the wall at your side. It's the one that Richard Halliburton sent you of himself and four prisoners at Devil's Island. The poor fellow, sitting down, stripped to the waist, holds his right hand to the jaw of his woebegone countenance, and you wonder what crime the poor devil committed that sent him to this hell-hole. The cockroach has reached your desk and heading toward the telephone. To the left of the Devil's Island group a picture of an old-time saloon with 30 or 40 men crowded up against the bar drinking large schooners of beer. This was Joe Jacoby's idea of an ideal Christmas card, and his own features grin back at you from the neck of the bartender. The cockroach has crawled into the "JKL" hole of the telephone dial and seems puzzled.

You're getting desperate now. The column's beating you today. You haven't got a single idea, and this is a bad time to be out of ideas, because you're preparing a memo to the boss asking him how about a substantial increase in your salary, considering that times are good again and that auto salesman has just about won you over. You pick up your scrapbook and turn its pages idly. You come across that piece you wrote when you were sports editor covering the Jimmy Slattery-Billy Conley fight. "A much-heralded tornado from the Golden West," you wrote, "resolved itself into a blustering but futile wind last night. The self-styled 'tornado,' Billy Conley, of San Francisco, was buffeted and battered about the ring by a two-fisted young demon, Jimmy Slattery by name, in a dull bout at Brassco Park in Waterbury." You thought that was swell writing, and five years from now, when you pick up your scrapbook and go over some of the columns you're writing today, you'll wonder whether, back in 1930, you were self-satisfied, too.

The telephone rings and N. T. G. reminds you that his new revue opens at the Hollywood Restaurant Friday night. Will you be there? You promise. Funny fellow, Granny. A chatterbox. For two hours the other night he sat around with you recalling the old days. When Clara Bow, fresh out of Brooklyn, with a single cheap frock to her undulating frame, thought life held no greater glamour than being able to sit in a cheap movie house watching celluloid romances, especially if you had a 10-cent bag of caramels with you. When Lucille Le Seuer, later Joan Crawford, got her first night club engagement and sobbed all over the place because she didn't have an evening gown, and her tremendous gratitude when she was sent to Littman's and permitted to buy a $14 affair that had seven colors in it. Look at that roach trying to get into the paste pot—the damphool!

You haven't exhausted the possibilities of the walls, of course. For instance, right in back of you is that ribald Chaucerian poem on parchment sent to you from London by a reader. You were quite thrilled—don't you remember—to think that someone in London was part of your public. You didn't realize until you read the poem over three times that it was one of those double-entendre affairs, and now it's one of your prize possessions. And right alongside of it is the Lord's Prayer in sepian slang. You had intended to print it once, but upon second thought you reconsidered. It might be regarded as sacrilegious, and even you, with all your liberties, can't get away with that. The office boy's back with the chocolate and now you realize that, after all, it was a cigar you wanted, and not candy.

Your desk is pretty much of a mess, and it's about time you answered some of your mail.

Public Backs Hultman Against Gangsters

"Police Start Racketeer Roundup."

"All available members of the detective force were ordered by Police Commissioner Hultman to join in the war upon the local gangsters who are 'organizing' the dyers, the cleaners and the Italian bakers by 'strongarm methods.'

"'This is a racket and a very serious situation,' said Commissioner Hultman. 'Get it while it's young. Nip it in the bud now and it will save us a lot of trouble later on.'"

Good for Commissioner Hultman.

Good for the police.

The decent public are with you.

And they will not ask whether you have been nice and polite in your methods so long as you rid the city of these vicious gangsters and chiselers who seek to plunder and injure honest, legitimate businessmen.

This "organizing" business is one of the most notorious forms of underworld graft.

They are compelled to pay organization fees and dues in large sums. Presumably they are paying for an organization that will maintain the prices of their products and protect themselves from cut-throat competition.

They are actually paying for "cut-throat" work, but of a different kind. They are paying vicious tribute to save themselves and their businesses from violence by the gangster. They are paying the "shake-down" of the underworld.

Honest business has enough competition to keep its head above water without being compelled to pay the exactions of the gangsters, pimps and other denizens of the underworld.

Boston has been no safe haven for the organized criminal gangs.

They have had a healthy fear of Boston.

It is always and ever too early to allow them to get a foothold here.

That is why Hultman and the police can go proudly and bravely to their work, knowing that solid, substantial, honest public opinion has a prayer on its lips for their success.

History as She Is Wrote

If you were a Summer tourist here in Boston, you could pick up almost any sort of information, or misinformation, you wanted.

You could read in one pamphlet on "Historic Boston" that the signal lights for Paul Revere were hung in the tower of the old North Church; in another that they they beamed from the tower of the Christ Church in Salem Street.

You could find that Benjamin Franklin was born in any one of a dozen houses still standing in Boston or that James Otis defied the Writs of Assistance on Boston Common and in Faneuil Hall, at one and the same time.

Many of the European cities have gone into the tourist business so extensively that the municipalities themselves furnish this information in pamphlet form, and you can take it as being official. We should do it, and not make our visitors suffer fallen arches tramping around to so many of Franklin's birthplaces.

By the way, where were the lanterns hung?

Gave Life for the People

Deputy Chief Henry J. Power of the Boston Fire Department gave his life to the people whom he had served faithfully the past thirty-two years.

He insisted upon returning to his duty, even though in ill health. He responded to a very serious fire, directed the flotilla of equipment and the army of firemen contesting it, and himself died there—like a general leading his troops on the field of battle.

These tragic and heroic events are incidents in the daily lives of our brave firemen. Let us bear them in mind; in fact, let us have them constantly in mind when we are asked to consider the wages and the working conditions of these public servants.

A Matter of Good Manners

A Boston business man writes in:

"I never let anyone know when I get angry.

"I get out of my office as quickly as possible. Then I put on a pair of boxing gloves and fight it out with a punching bag. I keep my own self-respect and the respect of my employes."

Civilization is said, after all, to be a matter of good manners.

Just Folks

Laughter

Thank God for laughter! When it rings
That instant care and doubt take wings,
And even pain and temples hot
Are temporarily forgot
And the false joys of power and pride
By comedy are thrown aside.

The joyous soul that can supplant
The dull monotony of cant,
The tedium of scheme and plan
Which mark the daily path of man
With laughter, sets his fellows free
From every human misery.

Who can be won to laughter rare
Is loosed from every bond of care.
Self, with its heavy weight of doubt,
Is for the moment blotted out.
For while man laughs he can't recall
That he has ever grieved at all.

The Obvious Way Out

ADEQUATE REVENUE
HEAD U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
SALES TAX
UNWISE TAX SITUATION
WINSOR McCAY

While the National Government flounders about in the mire of the ill-conceived, hodge-podge tax legislation written into the laws at the first session of the Seventy-second Congress, organized business has seen the light and has pointed out the path for Uncle Sam.

H. I. Harriman of Boston, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in his recent radio broadcast advocated the manufacturers' sales tax.

This is the OBVIOUS WAY OUT of tax troubles, not only for Uncle Sam, but for business of the nation and the individual taxpayers.

A FIVE PER CENT MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX would yield revenue sufficient to permit the Government to wipe out all special and discriminatory excise taxes and all forms of nuisance taxes.

It would simplify budget balancing. It would not be burdensome.

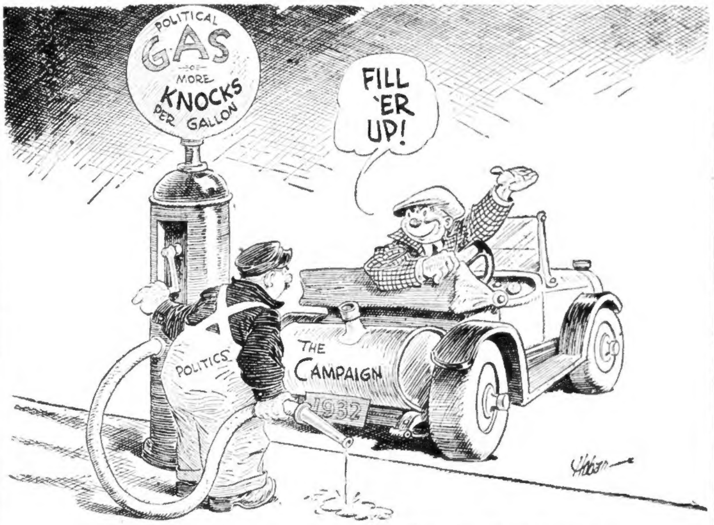
Election Gas



If you hear an endless knocking
As the days of Summer pass,
And the knocks grow loud and shocking,
It is just Election Gas.

When the orators get busy
And they sizzle and they pop,
It's the gas that makes 'em dizzy—
There's a knock in every drop.

O. O. McIntyre -:- New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and Marshall Neilan called, as gay a harlequin as I know. And Earl Carroll dropped by to carry away a fine painting bequeathed by a mutual friend. So at my daily dither, and to sit with my mother-in-law in the brave sunshine, quaffing a jordan of lemonade.

Through the town, meeting that valiant war horse, Jack Curley, and on to Jean Dalrymple Morehouse's to meet my wife. Neal Andrews and his fair lady, Dorothy Hall, there; also, Florence Speed and Vicki Baum. Then, for a spin through the park, and to the Claremont for dinner.

In the evening, to a cinema and amused especially at the nonsense of J. P. Medbury and, later, picking up Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson and carrying them to the St. Regis. To bed betimes, and read Gilbert Frankau's "Christopher Strong," movingly and beautifully writ.

Someone digs up an old theatrical program of William Faversham's starring vehicle, "The Squaw Man." Six of the original cast became as famous, and far wealthier, than Faversham himself. The list included: Theodore Roberts, William S. Hart, William Boyd, George Fawcett, Mitchell Lewis and William Haines.

During the Faversham era, the haunt of distinguished players was the lounge of The Players in Gramercy Park. In those days, a pony of brandy was eight cents and there was a hullaballoo when the House Committee, in casual dicta, raised it to nine. So mighty was the protest, the old price was restored. Incidentally, it seems to me that in the gallant modernizations, The Players, more than any other institution in New York, preserves a fine excess of its pristine charm.

Some time ago, I trailed in the wake of Judge Samuel Seabury for several blocks along the avenue. He seems enamoured of decorum, tradition and austerity. One could bet he never was called "Sammy" in his youth. Only one other person I ever saw suggests such a stand-offishness—that was the elder J. P. Morgan.

The senior Morgan was the most difficult of all Wall Streeters to interview. Many times he was surrounded near his fortress at Wall and Broad. In such contingencies, he naively discarded his archdeacon manner and graciously invited the reporter into his bailiwick and, through the labyrinth of corridors, to a certain office. There he would hand out an expensive cigar, excuse himself for the moment. And that was the last ever seen of him.

In aimless wander today, I passed the site of two furious high spots of other years. One was the old Cafe Beaux Arts at 41st and 6th, long a spot for gourmets hungering for peches flambees and frog legs provencale, and still carrying on. Texas Guinan began her hostessing there. The other was 39th street's Bustanoby's, now a memory.

In those days, cafe life consisted of singing and dancing, and that interlude called "rest period." And, after all, the great shearer, Time, leaves us something. I no longer sing and dance. But can I rest period!

The Next Senate Is to Be Democratic

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE TERMS OF ONE-THIRD of the members of the Senate expire this year and they are up for re-election in the event of their renomination. There appears at this moment to be no doubt that the next House will be strongly Democratic. In truth there is a serious danger that it may be too heavily so; for when there is an unwieldy majority there is usually less solidarity than is desirable.

The Senate today is Republican; though with the aid of progressive Republicans the Democrats are able to dominate, and have dominated over Hoover in numerous instances. It is best for a party to have a clear majority of its own and not to be dependent on temporary alliances.

In hazarding a guess on the result of the Senatorial elections this year, we may safely exclude from discussion the States where we may be sure there will be no political overturn.

There are fourteen of these, and of the fourteen the Democrats are certain to carry all but one. Certainly the Democratic nominees will be reelected in Kentucky, Alabama, Louisiana, Ohio, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Arizona, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma and Maryland. The Republican nominee in Vermont is just as certain of re-election.

Ohio, Oklahoma Hardly Doubtful

Someone may challenge the conclusion as to Ohio, but there is every present indication that the electoral vote of Ohio will go to Roosevelt and that Senator Buckley, who is exceptionally popular, will be triumphantly returned.

Thus of the 32 Senators to be chosen we may put down 12 as sure to be Democrats and one Republican.

States Where Battles Loom

Unless there are factional dissensions in the Democratic party in Connecticut the Democrats should carry the State for the Presidential ticket. This would be apt to sweep in the Democratic Senatorial nominee. The Republican nominee, Senator Bingham, however, is apt to be stronger than Hoover because of the position he holds on prohibition. This, then, is a battling State.

In Illinois there will be a struggle. Normally the advantage would be with Senator Glenn because of the Republican majorities down-State. There can be no doubt of a sweeping Democratic majority in Chicago. It requires more temerity than we possess to undertake to balance the one against the other. Another battle ground.

In Missouri, Senator Hawes, one of the most popular of men, has declined renomination. Had he consented to another term there would be scarcely any doubt of his re-election. His withdrawal has resulted in a very spirited fight for the Democratic nomination and this always leaves some scars. Even so, Missouri is more certain to re-elect a Democrat than Illinois is to re-elect a Republican.

Kansas Democrat Sure to Return

While the Republicans' holding from Washington, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho and Colorado would under normal conditions have the advantage, there is a strong probability that Roosevelt will carry all these States; and if he does the Democratic Senatorial nominees will sweep in with him.

The Democrat from Kansas is almost sure of election. It is no secret that Vice-President Curtis seriously considered refusing a renomination at Chicago to run for the Senate from Kansas. He made a careful survey of the State and concluded, we may assume from his action, that Hoover has as much chance for re-election as has a Republican Senatorial nominee from Kansas.

In Iowa, where Senator Brookhart was defeated for renomination, the Democrat has all the advantage. In the two Dakotas there is every indication of a Roosevelt victory; but the two sitting Republican Senators have been anti-Hoover and these not unreasonably may prevail. This, however, does not contribute to Republican comfort.

There is a fighting chance to defeat Senator Moses in New Hampshire.

Five Contests of Importance

In Wisconsin, Senator Blaine, anti-Hoover Republican, would only be endangered should the factional bitterness there impel the reactionaries to support the Democratic nominee in a spirit of vengeance.

This brings us down to five important contests in California, Utah, New York, Indiana and New Jersey.

The amazing showing made by the Democrats in California in the registration justifies the hopes of the party there. If they are able to present a solid front they are almost sure to win. McAdoo will probably be the Democratic nominee; and while he is not so strong in San Francisco as in Southern California, his differences with leaders there are being ironed out. Nowhere is there more bitter dissatisfaction with the fruits of the Hoover Administration.

Fight to Defeat Sen. Reed Smoot

Can the Democrats defeat Reed Smoot, the oldest Senator in point of service in Utah? They think they can. It is of some significance that his supporters there are now appealing for him on the ground that he is old and unfortunate financially, and should be given a big sympathy vote. This contest will be a battle, at any rate, that only the polls can settle.

In Indiana, Senator Watson is doomed. He thinks so. His most ardent friends think so, and say so. The State unquestionably will go to Roosevelt by a handsome majority. His democratic opponent is a very able and popular man—and Watson himself is not what he used to be. It is almost a safe bet at this juncture that Watson will go down.

In New York it seems incredible that Senator Wagner, who has made a remarkable record of important public service, should be defeated. Only disloyalty in the Democracy in New York can accomplish that result. And there is no reason for disloyalty to Wagner.

In New Jersey there is ample justification for the conclusion that the Democrats will elect Percy Stewart, who made the sensational and successful race for Congress in a strong Republican district.

Democrats Sure of 12 Seats

Thus to sum up: There are 32 Senatorial seats involved.

The Democrats are absolutely certain to win in 12.

At present these seats are held by 15 Democrats and 17 Republicans.

The Democrats have an excellent chance to win 5, and a fighting chance in 6. And there is not a Democratic seat that is in serious danger.

Thus there is every reason to predict that the next Senate will be Democratic.
